RED RICE'S — SUNDAY, FEB. 21.

Whereas, for good and sufficient reasons, it has become absolutely necessary for Red Rice to reduce stock on hand. Now, therefore, a due regard for the opinion of our many friends and customers makes it desirable and wise for us to give some reasons for why a business that has been from its inception constantly growing larger should now take a step the other way. Firstly, then, our stock of furniture and household goods has grown to immense proportions: so large that it takes much room to display it as our margin of profit is small, and large rooms are expensive. Under the present arrangement we are losing instead of making. It, therefore, becomes necessary for the configuration of the state of the contragency of reduce of the weaker of the contragency of the contragency of bargains being offered we bought rather too freely of many kinds of goods, given gour obligations for the same. These are now coming due and must be met promptly. In order to meet them we must have money. We have no other resources, except to get the same from our goods. In order to sell large quantity of goods. The order to sell large quantity of goods for the selling. We, therefore, bave, gone through our entire store, cutting the prices on everything down, down without regard to cost. Self-preservation is the first law of nature. We would rather sacrifice part of our goods for with our firends, and they are many, are, with ourselves,

The Express Messenger Shot Three Times by the Outlaw.

The Robber Then Captures an Engine and Tries to Escape.

Trainmen Follow with Another Locon tive—Shots Exchanged —The Des perado Finally Run Down and Captured

By relegran to the times.

ROCHESTER (N. Y.,) Feb. 21.—[By the Associated Press.] The shooting of an express messenger on a New York Central train, the rifling of the safe, flight of the robber on the engine of another train from which he drove the crew at the point of a revolver, a running fight from the engine for miles, followed by another engine filled with railway men, and the final capture of a desperado by a sheriff's posse, in a swamp, after a wild pursuit across the country, are some of the sensational features of the most desperate attempt at train robbery in the history of the Central Railroad, and which cast in the shade, as an exhibition of coolness and nerve, the famous exploits of the Jesse James band or other outlaws of Western fame.

One car is known as the "money car," and contains specie from the United and contains specie from the United States Treasury for Western banks and money in process of exchange between banks of New York and the West. The load of wealth sent out from New York on this train is usually greater on Saturday evening than on other days, and often amounts to more than $1,000,000, in addition to jewels and other valuables. The most trusted messengers are placed in charge of this car. Only one messenger, Daniel T. McInery, was assigned to the money car on Saturday night, as the work of billing waylight. The other cars had two messengers.

The train left Syracuse at 5 o'clock the train left syracuse at 6 o'clock this morning in charge of Conductor Emil Lgass, with Caleb Cherry as engineer. A coach was in rear of the train and the money car was just ahead. When the train was near Weedsport the conductor thought he heard the air whistle sound very faintly. It aroused him to the belief that something was wrong on the express car. Going out wrong on the express car. Going out on the platform he climed into the car, and looking through the hole which the bell cord comes through, he saw the up-per part of a man whose face was concealed by a red flannel mask. The mes-senger he could not see. The conductor went back, set the air brake and called his two trainmen. Suddenly a man's form appeared at the side door of the express car.

REVOLVER BULLETS WHISTLED past their ears, and a voice was heard commanding them to signal the engineer to go ahead or take the consequence. The trainmen were unarmed. The conductor told one of his men to jump off and run back to Jordan and telegraph along the line to Rochester telegraph along the line to Rochester that they had a train robber on board. This was done, and the conductor sig-naled the engineer to go ahead at full speed, thinking the robber would not dare to jump, and would be captured at the next stop.

The train went to Port Byron. Here the breaks were set again and the con ductor and trainmen went to the express car. The car showed signs of a desperate struggle. Money packages and jewelry were lying scattered about. Every thing in the car was

The robber was nowhere seen, and i was supposed he had jumped and made his escape. The train went on to Lyons. The news had spread all along the line by this time, and the station at Lyons was all alive.

Among others in the crowd was a well-dressed young man wearing gold eye-glasses and carrying a satchel slung over his shoulder. It happened that the trainmen noticed the young man at Syracuse before the train started and they had not seen him since, and the question, what was he doing at Lyons at once suggested itself. An attempt to arrest him was made, but he PULLED TWO REVOLVER held the crowd back and backed acros the yard until he reached a coal train the engine of which had steam up read to pull out for the west. He pulled the pin holding the tender to the first car, climbed over the coal into the cab drove the engineer and fireman out with his revolvers, pulled open the throttle and started the engine. Conductor Laass and one of the switchmen procured shotguns, freed the engine of the express and, with the fireman and engineer, of the fugitive. The Central Hudson is a four-tracked road, and the engines of the fugitive. The Central Hudson is a four-tracked road, and the engines, though going west, were not on the same track. The express engine soon overtook the robber, who suddenly reversed his engine and let his pursuers pass him, pouring a perfect shower of bullets into the cab as the pursuers went by. Then the pursuers stopped and the pursued went ahead. Another artillery duel ensued, the shotgun taking part this time. No one was hurt in either battle. About seven miles farther on the robber found the steam going out of his engine. He dropped off at a cross road and started across the country, going south. He managed to terrorize a farmer into letting him have a horse and rode on about two miles. Here he procured another horse.

THE BOHERE CAPTURED.

The party in the express engine had returned to Lyona, where the sheriff of Wayne county organized alposse, which, under command of a deputy, started in pursuit. In the meantime farmers, along the robber's line of retreat also turned out fully armed in pursuit. The runaway was sighted about five miles south of Newark. The roads were very bad and he made very poor speed. He abandoned his horse and ran across lots to Benton's swamp. But the swamp to Benton's swamp. But the swamp proved too full of water to be pene-trated and the fugitive took up a posi-tion behind a stone wall and faced his tion behind a stone wall and faced his pursuers. After some parley he surrendered to Deputy Sheriff Collins.

He was taken back to Lyons and lodged in jail. He gave the name of William Cross. He said he was from New Mexico and had been boarding in Syracuse for some time. He admitted that he was the man who attempted the train robbery, to Chief of Detectives Hayden of this city, who had been wired for. He is believed to be the muchwanted Oliver Curtis Perry, who robbed Express Messenger Moore near Utica last fail.

THE FIGHT IN THE EXPRESS CAR.

THE FIGHT IN THE EXPRESS CAR. The story of what occurred in the express car as far as can be gathered is as expressear as far as can be gathered is as follows: Cross boarded the train when it pulled out of Syracuse, climbing on top of the express car. He was provided with a hooked rope. Fastening he hook in the roof on the side of the car he let himself down on the other side and, resting his toes on the ledge that runs across the car, looked through the glass of the side door and saw the messenger in front of one of the safes, which was open. Smashing the glass messenger in front of one of the safes, which was open. Smashing the glass with his revolver he covered the messenger, ordering him to throw up his hands. Instead McInery reached for the signal cord with one hand and for a the signal cord with one hand and for a revolver with the other. A bullet smashed his hand, but not before the signal was given that aroused the conductor. Then McInery fired on the robber, putting a bullet through his coat. The robber then shot the messenger twice, once in each leg. He then climbed into the car and a deserted struggle took place, which did He then climbed into the car and a desperate struggle took place, which did not end until the train was stopped for the first time near Weedsport. It is evident that the robber then climbed out on the top of the car, remaining there until the stop at Lyons.

As far as has been learned the robber secured absolutely nothing.

LATER.—It is now learned that the robber was formerly a cowboy and later Engineer Mahan was fatally, and Fireman Lindsay severely, injured. All the passengers escaped without injuries.

Other Political Doings—Tammany Talking of Going to Chicago Without Giving Pledges-The Squabble in the Alliance.

St. Louis, Feb. 21.—[By the Associated Press.] Every incoming train today brought a large number of delegates to the largest convention of wealth-producers ever assembled. Among the various organizations the Sabbath was not one of rest, but rather day of labor and anxiety.

The lay delegates spent a day in sight-seeing and enjoyment, or lounged about the hotel corridors, quietly discussing the problems they are here to solve, while still others engaged in animated conversation over the probability of a third party being placed in bility of a third party being placed in the field.

Associated Press reporters made the rounds of the various hotels where the usbandmen are stopping, and the rehusbandmen are stopping, and the result shows that a great many delegates are in favor of putting candidates in the field for the Presidency and Vice-Presidency, while others say the time is not yet arrived for such action, that the old parties may yet adopt a platform which will meet the views of agriculturalists 'and workingmen. The latter, though, are in a very small minority and it is not at all likely that they can carry the day when the questhey can carry the day when the ques-tion is brought before the convention, which will open at 2 o'clock tomorrow. G. F. Washburn, chairman of the Na-

G. F. Washburn, chairman of the National Finance Committee of the People's party, in an interview said: "I believe that the confederated industrial conference will take independent political action. There is no doubt that a committee will be appointed authorized to act in conjunction with the National Committee of the People's party in calling a national nominating convention before June 1. I believe the platform will be brief, but it will be very clear cut and emphatic in tone. The tide seems hourly rising in favor of independent action and by tomorrow it will be irresistible. If Livingstone, Terrill and Macune attempt to resist it they will be literally swept out of the way. will be literally swept out of the way. The delegates from their States claim that their constituencies will repudiate them if they attempt to oppose the majority of the conference. From present indications it would seem that this is to be the largest and most important industrial conference ever held. It is estimated that there will be 3000 to 10,000 visitors in the city during the session."

The above expresses the sentiments of leaders of the new movement, and it will not be surprising if the scheme to hold a national nominating convention is carried through with a whoop and hurrah. At all events, farmers say they will "try and take hold of the reins of government" for awhile, and see of government" for awhile and see whether or not they can ameliorate their condition, which, they say, is becoming unbearable. The California del nia delegation this evening adopted the following resolution, which will create somewhat of a sensation in political circles:

WHEREAS, there are certain parties in the city of St. Louis booming Leland Stan-ford for the Presidency of the United States,

Outline of Matters Coming Before Congress During the Week.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—[By the Associated Press.] The present week in Congress is likely to be uneventful. Although both Houses will reassemble on Tuesday it is improbable that quorums will be present. THE FAGANS AT HOME.

The Entire Outfit Once More on Their Native Heath. Terence Fagan a son of the Bush street livery stable man, was returned from Los Angeles last night and surrendered into the custody of the police by his bondsmen, who went security for his appearance in the Superior Court, where he will have to answer a charge of an assault with a deadly weapon, says the San Francisco Chronicle of Saturday. Seven months ago he stabbed Ed Stemple in a saloon on Stockton street, near Market, and was held for trial on $1000 bonds, on which Stockton street, near Market, and was held for trial on $1000 bonds, on which his father, James Fagan, and his brother's mother-in-law went security. Since his release Fagan has been traveling through Texas, New Mexico and Arizona selling jewelry while waiting for the reappearance of witnesses now in Montana and Idaho. Several long continuances have been granted in this case, which have caused the police to regard the proceedings with suspicion. Several days ago his bondsmen, fearing he would jump his bonds, had him arrested and sent James Fagan, Jr., a brother of Tefence, to Los Angeles to bring him back. Before James Fagan, Jr., abrother of Tefence, to Los Angeles to bring him back. Before James Fagan, Jr., went south he was sworn in as a deputy sheriff. No sooner had he roached Los Angeles and taken his brother into custody than he proceeded to get gloriously drunk with Terence and a woman the latter was in company with. In some way Terence got lost among the saloons and caused the special deputy sheriff from San Francisco much trouble to recapture him. The recapture was effected by James going to the police station and waiting for his brother to be "brought in." At last they got started, and they arrived in the city last night.

Fagan, Sr., fearing that his son might forget to take his prisoner to the police station, at once had Police Officer Cills go to the Oakland ferry to take Terence away from the special deputy sheriff.

Terence Fagan, when seen by a Chronicle reporter, said he had no idea of running away. He had been away from the city seven weeks, traveling in the Southwest, and he could have easily escaped if he had desired. When in Los Angeles he heard that he was wanted here and he telegraphed to his father to send him $20 to return with if such was the case. Someone in San Francisco scared his father about the matter of the bonds and so he was rearrested.

"Jim made a fool of himself down there," said Terry. "We did drink a little together and he got too much. Pollasky Says He Owns the Fresno Road.

The Southern Pacific Company Is Not in It.

Fighting Over That Sugar Rate to the Missouri River.

Rule for Trainmen on the Suing a Corporation for Slander-

From the time of the inception of that San Joaquin Valley Railroad, up at Fresno, the real backing of the enterprise has been a mystery. It has been publicly charged that the Southern Pacific Company was back of it, there being certain known circumstances to confirm this suspicion. A Fresno Re-publican reporter called on Marcus Pollasky, president and promoter of the road, and asked him point blank who road, and asked him point blank who really does own the road. "My dear boy," the young railroad magnate said patronizingly, "I have answered that question repeatedly, but I don't mind doing so again. It will, however, be a mere repetition of what I said in November last. The San Joaquin Valley Railroad was not then building in the interest of the Southern Pacific Company and is not now being operated for them. As to the ownership of this road I can only say now as I did in November: First, that the Southern Pacific Company is not now, and never has been, interested in the road, has nothing to do with it further than furnishing some of the supplies and materials which I found decidedly advantageous in buying, and which were paid for at their full value, the same as if they had been bought of any one else. I myself, am the principal stockholder in the road; furnished the first money that ever entered into the preliminary work, and now own a controlling interthat ever entered into the preliminary work, and now own a controlling inter-est in it. I ran in debt for most of my stockholding because I had faith in this country and in its almost inexhaustiblecountry and in its almost inexhaustible-resources. C. P. Huntington is my friend. It was through his friendship and his faith in the resources of Fresno county that I was enabled to secure the financial backing that is building this road. But the Southern Pacific has noth-ing to do with it, nor has it had anything to with it, except as above stated.

The other day the Pasadena Star complained bitterly because a Los Angeles morning paper had appropriated a story claimed to have originally appeared in the Pasadena twinkler. The story was that of a tramp, who, according to the chronicler, got on a Santa Fé train at San Bernardino to steal a 'ride eastward, but happened to take a truck passage on one of the cars that were hauled around the Redlands loop, bringing up again at his starting place. The Pasadena paper claims to have been the inventor of the yarn and that the Los Angeles paper alluded to stole it bodily. Now the San Bernardino Courier prints the same story, locating it on the larger loop of the "latte-shaped" track from Los Angeles. This will give some exchanges another chance to kick for misappropriation of brain ebullition. The story was very good a number of years ago, when it was written to describe a tramp's experience on the Chicago Belt Railroad, but when adapted to Southern California scenery it seems new. plained bitterly because a Los Angeles

SOUTHERN PACIFIC AND UNION PACIFIC. A special dispatch to the Examiner from Omaha says that the interests of the Southern Pacific and the Union Pacific, which have been so long almost combined, promise to be shortly cut-ting at each other in such a way as to ting at each other in such a way as to involve California in a great rate war. It is a result of the trouble among the transcontinental lines over a proposition to raise the sugar rate from California to4the Missouri River. The present tariff to the river is 65 cents, which was made in order to meet sugar coming from the East and South. It is now proposed to raise the rate to $1. The apparent effect of this move would be to shut California sugar refiners out of the Missouri Valley, with a consequent loss of eastbound traffic for the transcontinental railroads. Open hostilities continental railroads. Open hostilities are said to be imminent between the two roads.

The office of the ticket agent of the Old Town and Pacific Railway in San Diego was rifled about six weeks ago and 800 unstamped tickets stolen. Some young boys, who sold the tickets to a resident of Old Town for 25 cents, claim to have found them scattered on the street.

A new rule adopted by the Santa Fe provides that all brakemen and other men on train service must, at regular intervals, be examined in time card rules, signaling and other matters pertaining to running of trains. The examination is conducted by the various division trainmasters.

"THE TIMES FLYER."

The Longest Newspaper Delivery Route in the World.

[San Jose Mercury.]

The Los Angeles Times has succeeded in arranging with the Santa Fé Railway for the running of an early morning train on the "kite-shaped track," as the railroad around the valley is called, and in this way The Times and the mail are delivered in San Bernardino, Redlands, Riverside and other towns along the route before breakfast. This Reclands, Riverside and other towns along the route before breakfast. This is the kind of newspaper energy we like to see, and when Santa Clara Valley gets a kite-shaped track girding it like a belt we will imitate our contemporary, and thus prove the genuineness of our praise. In the meantime we shall continue to do as we have been doing for some time past and send the Mercury by our own carriers on swift ing for some time past and send the Mercury by our own carriers on swift horses as far east as Evergreen, about nine miles, and circling round the city, touching every point within an equal radius. We can say, therefore, we think, without boasting, that no other paper in the world can show an area of distribution equal to ours, unless aided as our Los Angeles contemporary is by its railroad. its railroad.

"A PROGRESSIVE STROKE."

[The Kaleidscope, San Bernardino, Feb. 20.]
The Los Angeles Times now reaches this city at 7:25 a.m. on the "Flyer," leaving Los Angeles at 5:80. It is a progressive stroke on the part of that interesting paper, and we trust the pro-prietors will receive sufficient encour-agement to keep it up.

THE BROAD AND SENSIBLE VIEW.
[From the Same.]

The Courier of last Wednesday makes strong appeal to the people of this city not to support the Los Angeles pa-pers since they are arriving here so early in the morning. Now, this is foolish, and will have no weight with early in the morning. Now, this is foolish, and will have no weight with the masses. These Los Angeles papers, by indulging in so much enterprise, do this city and valley a vast amount of free advertising, and we hope the community will reciprocate with many subscriptions. Such competition as this does the home papers much good. It encourages people to take papers and read them, thus creating a craving for more news. If a man takes no paper at all he will not read a local paper. If he takes a Los Angeles or San Francisco paper then he may take a home paper. The people who subscribe for foreign papers are those who read, and every man or woman who reads wants a home paper; hence the Los Angeles papers in pushing their business encourage new readers, and our local papers receive agreat benefit indirectly. We are always glad to encourage everything of a public nature, and we think this early newspaper train is a public enterprise. The paper train is a public enterprise. The Courier, the Times-Index and, yes, even The Kaleidoscope, will be benefited by it. "AHEAD OF ANYTHING."

[Boyle Heights Criterion.]
The Los Angeles Times has recently inaugurated an enterprise ahead of anything in this part of the country, by sending out an early daily train to deliver, the paper all along the line of the "kite-shaped track" of the Santa Fé, extending by the way of Pasadena along the Sierra Madre range and Pomona-Valley to San Bernardino and then around the smaller loop by the way of Highland, Mentone and Redlands, and around the southern portion of the large loop by the way of Colton, Riverside and Orange. "The Times Flyer" is an early riser and "gets around" before breakfast.

IN LORDSBURG. [Boyle Heights Criterion.]

IN LORDSBURG [Southern Catifornian.] There are four daily passenger trains each way through here [Lordsburg] on the great Santa Fé. A new train at 6:88 a.m., known as. AT THE OPERAHOUSE—Ferncliff. (Matinee, The Burglar.)

How TRUE it is that unfavorable reports of any character increase as the square of the distance increases. Take the following as a living illustration of this proposition, which we clip from the New York Evangelist of February 11:

It is reported that the orange-growers of California are suffering heavy loss in consequence of severe frosts and of an electric windstorm in December. Two-thirds of the crop are unmarketable. The loss reacts on the railroads and on nearly all classes of society.

Soup-houses have not been established, however, for the relief of the populace here.

THE colony of Newfoundland proposes to hold an industrial exhibition at St. Johns next October for the general display of industrial workmanship, the products of the Newfoundland fisheries, agricultural products and specimens illustrative of mines, and for study of natural history. In giving this exhibition this British colony takes the most advanced ground on protection. While the manufacturers and other producers from Canada, the United States and England are invited to exhibit and assured of an entry "free of duty for that purpose," the prizes and premiums to be awarded will go to local exhibitors only. The competition will be among the people of the colony, but they invite foreigners to show their products as an object lesson to their own people.

THE rigorous quarantine regulations imposed by the authorities of New York to prevent the further importation of typhus fever are likely to check foreign immigration for a time. As matters now stand, the steamship companies are obliged to keep their passengers at their own expense until the quarantine is removed. This literally eats up all the profit in the passage money, and one company has announced its intention not to bring over any more Russian refugees. Other companies will probably take the same course. It may be pretty hard on the refugees, but it is better that they should fight out the contest with fate on the other side of the water than that they should spread contagion among 60,000,000 people in this country. Self-preservation is the first law of nature, and the United States cannot be blamed for exercising it to the fullest extent.

Ir Judge Anderson is correct in one of the positions taken in his argument before the Special Committee on Water Supply of the Council there is not a municipal county or corporation bond in the State of California issued under the twenty-years sinking fund regulation. Judge Anderson holds that, by a strict construction of the law, it is necessary to pay off every year onetwentieth of each bond thus outstanding. It is not sufficient, he thinks, to accumulate a sinking fund in the treasury and take up a part of the bonds at a time. Each bond must have a partial payment made upon it. If this be correct, there will be a great overhauling of securities in this State. Whether the irregularity in the manner of mak ing payments would work a forfeiture of the bonds themselves is a question for the gentlemen of the hair-splitting profession to determine.

THE story of a negro accused of rape being burned at the stake in Arkansas is revolting in the extreme. Allowing that the mob caught the right man, and that he deserved death, the fact re mains that any community which perpetrates such an atrocity in this country and in this age is guilty of a grave offense against itself. If the laws are not strong enough to meet this class of crimes, make them stronger; and then let public sentiment assert itself to see that they are enforced to the letter. Allowing that a man, white or black who perpetrates this fearful crime forfeits his life, let him be put to death by the law, decently and in order. It has been thought that this country had passed the epoch of burning people. When this practice is revived we seem to be drifting backward towards the dark ages. The fate of the wretches who die by this method is bad, but the fate of communities which resort to it is worse. They are drifting into savagery and they and their children and children's children must suffer the penalty.

ARTHUR M. SEYMOUR of Sacramento is the young man who last year carried off the honors of the graduating class of the California State University, and who made himself famous by declining to accept the medals and distinctions offered him by the faculty, claiming that the custom was an unfortunate one, creating an invidious and unfair distinction between classmates who had all worked with equal ardor. He has lately achieved some additional notoriety as the expert of the Sacramento grand jury. It is said he found some better way of experting the books of public officials than the time-honored mode of checking off the cash book with stubs and checking from the journal to the ledger. What that way is has not developed. As, however, the grand jury did not consider it worth while to pay much attention to its expert's report, but went ahead with its wholesale job of whitewashing, probably there's no use of wasting enlogies on the finer details. What the country needs most is an expert's report that will do some Therefore, on the 1st of March, 1892—by which time the was adopted, two years ago, the circulation of 10,000 high-water mark will have been reached and passed—these rates will be advanced, not 50, but 15 per cent., in order that they may be made more nearly ade quate to the circulation, which is the only true basis of dvertising values.

De Lesseps' Mistake, Ferdinand de Lesseps would have done well if he had considered his lifework ended with the completion of the Suez Canal. He was then well advanced in years and he came out of that great enterprise with sufficient wealth for all of his reasonable requirements and a name that was sure to be handed down in history with great honor. But he betraved a weakness into which many other strong men have been drawn. He undertook the Panama Ca nal project, probably under great pressure from friends, and he was drawn into a combination more bent on the specu lation involved than the real enterprise The affairs of the company were wretch edly managed from the outset. De Les seps was not young enough or active enough to catch the drift of things until disaster was inevitable. Long be fore the company became wrecked it was an open secret upon the Isthmus that mismanagement and gross methods of dishenesty were practiced to an alarming extent. Officers of the company resigned to take profitable contracts, and in several cases retired with fortunes running into the millions. Clerks and other employes receiving salaries of only $200 per month lived riotous lives of gambling, drinking and association with fallen women, and it was no uncommon sight to see one of them lose thousands of dollars at the gambling tables in a single night only to return the next night with thousands more. The money was leaking out of the company's treasury and the elder De Lesseps was too old to detect that which was common talk upon the Isthmus, and the young man was either blind to the drift of things or else too indolent to put a check upon the abuses. Thousands of Frenchmen invested their savings in the scheme, banking on their confidence in De Lesseps. The result is loss to them, disaster to the enterprise and dishonor to the name of De Lesseps. The old man is very near to death's door, and the end of his life must be clouded by constant chagrin over the great failure.

Our Water Interests.

Copious extracts from the speeches of Messrs. Allen and Anderson before the members of the Council on Saturday treating of the legal aspects of the water question appear in THE TIMES this morning. After showing the legal obstacles in the way of the city's issuing bonds for the construction of new water works while the present system condoing business "at the old stand," these gentlemen (who were members of the Citizens' Committee of 1890) give reasons why it would be practicable and expedient for all the various water plants and systems now in operation to be purchased and consolidated into one com prehensive system, to be operated under the immediate control of the Council, if need be, by a new company that could be formed for the purpose. Such a plan would have the merit of enabling the city to control the works without being compelled to buy them; and in the end the entire property would come into possession of the municipality without cost. The city has the choice of this plan or the other one open to it, namely, permitting the existing con-tract with the City Water Company to run its length-about six years more and then purchase the works of that company, which the city is bound by contract to do at the termination of the present lease. THE movement for the election of United States Senators by popular vote gains strength in Congress. Senator Turple of Indiana has already advocated a bill to that end. Senator Palmer, who was virtually elected by popular vote-that is, his Senatorship eing a condition and issue in the popular campaign in Illinois, and, tho there affirmed, very nearly nullified by the Legislature-has also taken up the question. The House Committee on Elections is hearing arguments to the same end. It is said that the movement has great force and, best of all, that it has no party complexion. Many of the best papers in the country strongly advocate it, and the opinion seems general that the reform is sure to succeed in the long run. As matters now stand many Senators hold their positions by virtue of their wealth alone. The seats of a proportion of these represent a corrupt purchase of the rotten borough which they affect to represent. In a few instances (California and Ne-vada, for example) the exact amounts

It would be a pretty rough joke on San Diego and the principal cities of Southern Arizona if a resurvey of the oundary line should set them over into Mexican territory. That would never do. As Uncle Sam has held possession of this strip of country, along with the rest acquired from Mexico, for forty years and it has been developed by American enterprise, the United States has nin strong points of law that would proba bly hold. The utmost that could comout of it would be a heavy indemnity paid to Mexico for its final cession However, there is little probability that the story is anything more than a ca nard.

LETTERS TO THE TIMES.

Our Army.

Los Angeles, Feb. 19.—[To the Editor of The Times.] Our standing army in this country is an army of office-holders. In other countries the standing army is a military organization and is exceedingly burdensome: ours, a civil organization, is not much less on the countries as one. much less so. As in other countries, so on densome: ours, a civil organization, is not much less so. As in other countries, so our standing army subsists on the public revenues. Taxes are levied and collected for the support of our army, and the amount consumed by it is enormous. It is, to say the very least, more than twice what it ought to be, but we are in twice what it ought to be, but we are in the vat and apparently can not get out of it.

In this respect we differ but little from the monarchies of the old world. They are utterly unable to get rid of their standing armies. Like them we are drifting from bad to worse. Their armies are increasing and becoming more and more expensive, and so is ours. We are multiplying officers year by year, and the officers are constantly growing more exacting in their demands. This is no longer a government of the people, but a government of office-holders, for office-holders. In the earlier and better days of the Republic the office sought the man, not the man the office; and office was then held for the honor there was in it; now, uniformly the office is sought and held for the money there is in it. In the early days in this country public officers were called (and were, in fact) public servants: now they are imperious masters and forget all responsibility to the people. We have rulers of various grades, but no longer public servants.

of various grades, but no longer public servants.

The compensation of our public functionaries is at least twice as great as it ought to be. We got along as well, nay, better, when our officers were less than half as numerous and were paid less than half the rates now paid. Then office was honorable, now it is only profitable. Now offices are bought and sold, formerly they were conferred for merit. It was once shameful to seek office, and public opinion frowned down such practice. It was not to be tolerated in a free country.

in a free country.

It requires the straining of every nerve

It requires the straining of every nerve in the citizen in these days to raise funds to pay taxes, and what is it all for, but to support an army of omce holders and carry out their schemes? Making money out of the public is as much of a trade as any other whatsoever, and is prosecuted with more diligence and with greater success than any other that can be named.

It used to be said that the country least governed was best governed; and certain it is that the least expensive government is best the world over. There is little occasion for government where the people are all just. The administration of laws in such a country can cost but little, and the public requirements are satisfied at small expense. We are losing our republicanism, our democracy is becoming a thing of the past. How can the people get back to the practice of choosing their own public servants? A disregard of party obligations in reference to local omces will force the parties to nominate good men or suffer defeat, and a reduction of the emoluments of office (and of taxes) can be secured by committing our legislators in advance of their election to a reduction of salaries and fees of office. As a rule, in the past, legislators have been elected to enlarge the compensation of officers.

Premature Burial.

Los Angeles, Feb. 18.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] Your article in yesterday's paper on premature burials has induced me paper on premature burials has induced me to offer a few thoughts on the subject. As nature never acts suddenly the change is not instantaneous which withdraws vital life from the body; the heart may become pulseless, the eye sunken, the cold immobility of death may have settled on the lips—the man may be said to have died. Nature, which does nothing by starts or fits, but by gradual processes, demands a time of repose and quiet in which her closing work may be accomplished. Abstain then from hurried movements, hurried preparations; cover the form with a soft woolen covering and leavelt in peace. Never place it upon ice, for we know not by what fine ligaments its sensations are for awhile connected with those of the recently freed soul. After an entire separation and the last electric thread is severed there is no possibility of return. Death cently freed soul. After an entire separation and the last electric thread is severed there is no possibility of return. Death occurs when the astral body or life principle and the spirit part forever withths corporeal body. The materialistic physician judges death to have occurred when life was apparently extinct—when the beating of the heart and the action of the lungs ceases—and yet sometimes life is not extinct even then.

The most learned physicians are unable to be certain when a person is dead. Animation may be suspended, in which case the astral body has not parted from the physical body. The sleep of the physical body is indeed an eternal sleep; it is a folded casement which has subserved its uses and will never be worn again. But a close and vital union is severed, endeared by old ties, old associations, memories and aspirations, and the higher part of these is the heritage of the ascending and freed spirit, which has accomplished its experiences and disciplines in the form so beautiful in its repose. In a certain German city so great is the dread of premature burial that deceased persons remain for a certain length of time in a room dedicated to that special use, where the slightest motion is communicated to a bell and calls upon an attendant. Cremation, on this account, and also on account of its being more healthful for the living, is a safe and salutary way for the disposal of our dead.

The French Cabinet Situation

PARIS, Feb. 21 .- President Carnot held a consultation with a number of statesmen today in regard to the formation of a cabinet. The opinion grows that the best way out of the diffeulty will be found in a dissolution of the chambers. In parliamentary circles the real cause of the fall of the ministry is said to have been the conviction pre-valent among the Radicals that the support given the movement by the Pope is due to a secret treaty between the cabinet and Vatican.

The Recent Elections Attended by Sanguinary Riots.

The People Indignant Over Wholesale Frauds in Counting.

Crops Swept Away by Swarms of Locusts-The Old Boundary Dispute with Chile Becoming a Serious Matter.

8y Telegraph to the Times.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22—[By the Associated Press.] The Herald's Buenos Ayres special says: The country continues in a condition of great agitation over the approaching Presidential elec-tions. The riots and frauds which dis-graced recent congressional Sunday elections have stirred up public indig-nation, which has increased as the in-nation, which has increased as the investigation into the charges against officials has proceeded.

At San Luis, the capital of the province of the same name, 42b miles north of Buenos Ayres, the disturbances were most serious. In a conflict between police and members of the Radical party the former discharged firearms at the crowd. After the firing ceased it was found that twenty-four civilians were wounded or killed. A large number of persons were arrested. They were treated very harshly, not being permitted to communicate with friends. The wounded, it is alleged, were left unattended for several hours and many were in danger of death. Señor Arias was one of those killed. Señor Salvador was also shot dead by the police. He was one of the formost radicals in San Luis and had a large following. His killing has aroused a storm of indignation throughout the province.

Frauds at the elections in San Luis are also causing bitter criticism. Cheating took place in almost all the departments. In nearly vervy instance it was restigation into the charges against of-

Roca, former President, favor his candidacy, is confirmed. A meeting of the committee to select a suitable candidate was held in Buenos Ayres on Thursday night and cordially agreed upon Pena. Word was received today of great distress among the farming population distress among the farming population of Mendosa, owing to the locust plague, 60 per cent of the wines in the province being destroyed by the pests.

The Foreign Minister's attention is now engaged upon points relative to the limits of Chile in the boundary question. It was stated that the difficulty between the Argentine limitation commission. the Argentine limitation commission and Chile arises from difference of opiz-ion in the interpretation of the treaty fixing the boundary.

TO GET RID OF INAMPS. Scheme Formed for Providing for Them

Work Which They Might Refuse, [Religio-Philosophical Journal.]
Mr. Hellar of Newark, N. J., has proposed, it is stated, to found seven colonics in seven States in the Union for people who are old and unemployed and for tramps. The reformation of tramps is to be the main feature of the scheme. Mr. Hellar seems to think that tramps are such because they cannot get work. In refutation of this the Popular Sci-

"During the past summer workers have been called for all over the United have been called for all over the United States to gather in this year's bountiful harvest. No tramp could extend his travels to twenty miles outside any large city without coming across farmers who would be glad to give him $15 or $20 a month and board for faithful work." Douglas Morrison, an English prison official and author of a work on "Crimes and Its Causes." gives the numprison official and author of a work on "Crimes and Its Causes," gives the number of vagrants who will work when it is offered to them at about 2 per cent, and experiments by M. Monod, of the Ministry of the Interior of France, have led him to the conclusion that the number in France is about 2½ per cent. The following statement by M. Monod is suggestive and instructive.

According to M. Monod a benevolently disposed French citizen wished to know the amount of truth contained in the complaints of sturdy beggars that in the complaints of sturdy eggars tha they were willing to work if they could get anything to do or any one to em-ploy them. This gentleman entered into negotiations with some merchants and manufacturers and induced them to offer work at the rate of 4 francs cents) a day to every person present himself furnished with a letter of ommendation from him. In eight months 727 sturdy beggars came under his notice, all complaining that they had no work. Each of them was asked to come the following day to receive a letter which would enable him to get employment at 4 francs a day in an industrial establishment.

More than one-half (415) never came for the letter; a good many others (188) returned for the letter, but never presented it. Others who did present their letter worked half a day, demanded 2 francs, and were seen no more. A few worked a whole day and then disappeared. In short, out of the whole 727 only sighteen were found at work at only eighteen were found at work at the end of the third day. As a result of this experiment M. Monod concludes that not more than one able-bodied beggar in forty is inclined to work even if he is offered a fair remuneration for his services. Unprofitable Orange hip nents.

[Anahelm Gazette.]

There has been great dissatisfaction among some of our orchardists in reference to the prices received by them for oranges. Several consignments sent to San Francisco netted from ½ of a cent to 2 cents per box. This is but little removed from wholesale robbery. Mr. Reiser shipped seventy boxes of as fine seedlings as were ever sent out from here, and his San Francisco commission house report a balance coming to him of $8.95. This he indignantly refused to accept, having about made up his mind to make the house a present of the entire consignment. Mr. Littlefield gets about 1 cent a box for a shipment of thirty boxes made to San Francisco, but a shipment of fifty boxes made to Los Angeles brought him $2.65 to $8 per box. The latter, however, were magnificent navels. While the other fruit was not up to the high quality of the latter, still they ought to have brought at least $1 a box, or say 75 cents. The fault lies entirely with the management of the house in San Francisco. Next year their buyers will have difficulty in getting fruit here at any price. Could our orchardists do proportionately as well as Mr. Gilman did with his crop, which was sold last Friday for something like $12,000, it would be something like it. Bnt he has the advantage of a large crop and an orchard second to none in the State. Still, our smaller orchardists ought to get more money for their oranges.

TEMPLE STREET CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

There was scapcely a vacant seat in the Temple Street Christian Church festerday morning. The pastor, Rev. A. C. Smither, preached an expository sermon based upon the sixth chapter of Second Corinthians, which was full of practical lessons to Christians, showing the tendency of the church to mingle with the world, to partake of its sins, becoming yoked together with unbedievers. The apostle exhorts the Corinthians to separate themselves from such becoming yoked together with unbedievers. The apostle exhorts the Corinthians to separate themselves from such practices, to come out from among them, to "touch not the unclean thing" and God will receive them. The demarkation between the church and the world is so slight as to be scarcely noticeable, not that the world is coming nearer to the church, but the reversethe church goes too near the world.

There was a large congregation in the evening. The subject, "What is Man?" brought out many thoughts of interest as well as points of knowledge upon this mysterious theme. The sermon was in substance as follows: Man is a mystery to himself; we wonder with amazement at our own being, and the ever occurring "whence, why and whither" this being, this life of a "span?" are questions which ever recur in our souls. From these standpoints we consider man. There are two theories as to man's origin, the scientific ancounts for his origin by the principles of evolution. This is but a theory; it has not been satisfactorily proved. There is still the "missing link" which has baffied all efforts to discover. The Biblical account constitutes a man, body, soul and spirit, and with this true science agrees. It also agrees with the Bible as to the unity of the race and the place of man's origin. We thus find man created in the likeness of God. Man today is the product of the past, and is the highest order of creation, Man today is the product of the past, and is the highest order of creation, combining the material and the divine. As we see man today he has fallen from the high estate in which he was created. the high estate in which he was created. This proved the legends of man everywhere, by a common yearning for a better life, and by the imperfect condition of the race. Man, though created in the image of God, the highest order of creation, stamped with the divine nature, alone is given to debauchery and suffers himself to become lower than the beast. The animal follows its instinct and lives in perfect harmony with the laws of its being and fulfills the mission of its created nature. Christ's mission was to lift man out of his fallen condition into a higher life. The possicondition into a higher life. The possi-bilities of human life are set forth in the life of Christ; man's rank and dig-nity were also taught by the Savior. The highest plane of human existence is spiritual life. Christ saves man in this life and builds for him a character that will fix his destiny. The future life will be a continuation of this life, whether for good or for evil. No imag-ination is capable of conceiving the possibilities of an eternity spent in the presence of God. ST. JOHN'S EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

"Our Highest Responsibility" was the subject of the rector's sermon at St. John's Episcopal Church yesterday morning. Human society as it exists at the present time, with its intricate network of interdependence and inter-communion, its various phases of social, political and commercial life, its rami-fications, extending from man to man, from family to family, from nation to nation, is a standing witness of the truth that "No man liveth to himself." A responsibility is thus laid upon every one, and the man who shirks his respon-sibility to his fellow-men is hase and

A responsibility is thus laid upon every one, and the man who shirks his responsibility to his fellow-men is base and gowardly. Citizenship involves certain responsibilities, among them that of bearing arms in defense of the nation and that of working and voting against political corruption.

The picture of the public-spirited citizen was carefully delineated—the man who aids in building churches, founding charitable institutions, establishing public libraries, improving the condition of the poor, beautifying the public resorts, etc. But, even after all this, such an one may, be discharging only in part, and that a minor part, the duties, responsibilities and obligations of life. These are all contained by and included in the largest of all our responsibilities—our duty toward God, a duty which rises above mere philanthropy and public-spiritedness, and includes it as the Atlantic Ocean includes the Bay of Fundy. Mere philanthropy no more discharges our duty toward God than the Bay of Fundy controls the tides of the Atlantic Ocean.

We are really living under two sets of laws—the laws of fund and the laws of the Atlantic Ocean.

the Bay of Fundy controls the tides of the Atlantic Ocean.

We are really living under two sets of laws—the laws of man and the laws of God. Philanthropy and good citizenship cover the former, but the latter are only discharged when the express commands of God as revealed by Jesus Christ are explicitly obeyed. These religious obligations are not discharged by being merely good citizens. He knew it was an unpopular, but a no less true, doctrine to preach, that the sacraments of holy baptism and holy eucharist were not ordained and instituted that we should neglect and despise them. God had outlined certain laws which we dare not disobey, and among them we find that of public worship and many others which are spurned and refused by many who come under the well-earned distinction of generous-hearted citizens.

He urged his hearers to accept those higher responsibilities which are involved in the phrase, "church member-

The Riverside Tennis Tournament This Week.

Some of the Prominent Players Who Will Take Part.

The Outlook for the California Baseball Season Very Encouraging.

Coming Events in Local Pugilistic Circles-Thirty-mile Race Today at Agricultoral Park-General Sporting Notes.

It is just five years ago since the Southern California Lawn Tennis Association was organized at a tournament which took place at Riverside between the Riverside and Pasadena clubs.

At the close of a most successful and enjoyable tournament a meeting was held, at which it was decided to form an association of clubs in Southern California, the following gentlemen being elected officers of the association: James Bettner, president; Abbot Kinney, vice-president; Charles Saunsecretary and treasurer. The seed which was then sown has, in the space of five years, grown into what promises to be the most successful organization of its kind in this section of the country. Other games live by fits and starts, but the popularity of law tennis is steadily increasing from year tennis is steadily increasing from year to year, the annual gathering each summer at Santa Monica being the most important social event of the season.

It has often been asked why the warmest season, of the year is chosen for indulging in such violent exercise.

The climate of Southern California is almost identical with that of the south of France, and in many respects a decided improvement, and there, during the winter months, many of the crack English players sojourn to keep their

Looking round then for some satisfactory reason to explain the temporary laying aside of the racket during our glorious winter climate the chief onus of the blame seems to rest with the Southern California Lawn Tennis Association, which has fostered the interests of the game at one season of the year only. A game at one season of the year only. A midwinter tournament has on several occasions been discussed, but the difficulty of finding a battleground with a sufficient number of courts has always had to be confronted, and not until the present season has any such favorable location been found.

Several months ago the Casa Blanca Club of Riverside went to considerable expense in purchasing land and laying out six courts at Arlington, and not many weeks since the club made a proposition in regard to holding a wintournament, which the association was only too willing to accept, with the result that this week Arlington will be the scene of a great gathering of tennis players. Handsome prizes have been purchased and admirable arrange-ments made by the local committee, consisting of Messrs. Bettner and Halsted, for the entertainment of the visitors at this tournament.

Play will commence on Wednesday next at 2 p.m sharp, entries for the first event, gentlemen's association sin-gles, closing at 1:45 o'clock. On each succeeding day games will be called at 10 a.m.

The tournament will be, governed by the laws of the national association, all questions in dispute being referred to the referee, whose decision will be

At the close of the tournament on Friday evening a grand tennis ball is to take place, when all players and vis-itors will be the guests of the Casa Blanca Club.

The tournament events are as follows: Gentlemen's association singles. Ladies' associations singles.

Gentlemen's association doubles Association mixed doubles

Gentlemen's handicap singles (open.)
The first and fourth event promise to be the best filled, the Casa Blanca Club alone entering six teams in the latter. In the singles, Cawston and Bumiller are both hot favorites. The second event will, in all probability, go to Miss Gilliland. For No. 8 Halsted and Butcher of Riverside and Germain and Bumiller of Los Angeles will probably be found in the finals, and the strongest team on paper for the mixed doubles is Cawston and Miss Gilliland.

For the benefit of those who contemplate journeying to Riverside on Wednesday it may be stated that "The Times Flyer" leaves Los Angeles at 5:30 a.m. and another train at 8:30

The California League season opens in less than five weeks, and the interest manifested in the national game exceeds that of any former year in this State. The Los Angeles team is the only one completed so far, and indications point to a most successful season in this end of the State.

Mr. Vanderbeck is expected nome to-morrow from San Francisco, where he went to assist in arranging the season's schedule. It is known that San Fran-cisco will open here on Saturday and Sunday, March 26 and 27, and will be followed by Oakland and San José, in four games each. It is the intention of the management to bring in excursions from every available point in Southern California for able point in Southern California for the opening contests, and Mr. Vander-beck believes that 14,000 'people will attend the first two games with San Francisco. In fact the young magnate intends to open the season in Los An-geles with a "hurrah" that will keep up the enthusiasm throughout the season.

The Los Angeles team works well on paper, at least. There will be Emmet Rogers, catcher; Neves, Roach, Stafford and Nicoll, pitchers; McCauley, first base; Glenalovin, captain and second base; Hulen, third base; Hassamer, shortstop; Wright, Tredway and Newman, outfielders. Eight of them are left-handed hitters, and good ones, too. The Pacific Northwest League is up in arms over the action of Pittsburgh in stealing Pitcher Camp from Seattle.

Phil Knell, who will be a Senator this year, has asked Manager Barnie to allow him to remain in Los Angeles until the opening of the National League season.

Pitcher "Easy" O'Neill has been signed by Oakriand.
Darby, Smith and Goodenough are still unsigned. It is safe to predict that there will be several poorer men in the California League.

Sixth street grounds.

The University football club will play a match game with the St. Vincent Cola match game with the St. Vincent College team at 9:30 o'clock this morning, on the University ground. The University club is as follows: F. N. Lapham, captain of the team; fullback, Robert T. Hall; halfbacks, F. N. Lapham, John A. Fray; quarterback, W. Knighten; end men, Jess Tucker, Harry Budlong; guards, A. B. Embree, Will Harmon; tacklers, John Leuzinger, T. Warres, context rush Lames R. Rossy. R. Warren; center rush, James R. Ross; substitutes, H. W. Cummings, Philip Blair, R. G. Van Cleve, Sidney Guinn and E. A McCombs.

A football match hetween the Black A football match hetween the Black stones and St. Vincent's College foot ball teams, which comprise some of the best amateur players in Southern California, will be played at the Athletic Park grounds this afternoon and should prove an attraction of more than usual interest, as it would be almost impossible to get two teams together more ble to get two teams together more evenly matched.

PUGILISTIC. On Thursday evening next Solly Smith of this city and Tommy Smith, who styles himself the "bantam-weight champion of the Northwest," will bat-tle for the supremacy and a | purse of $750 in the gymnasium of the New Cribb Athletic Club on North Main street, and Athletic Club on North Main street, and the contest should be a good one. The two youngsters met up north about a year ago and fought seven hot rounds in which honors were easy, but owning to the untimely interference of the police the fight was declared a draw. Since that time, however, Solly Smith has improved very much, and in spite of the fact that he is giving his northern opponent several pounds, he should not have much difficulty in adding another leaf to his well-earned wreath of laurels unless Tommy has advanced with equally wonderful strides. Capt. Neavy of this city is said to have backed the local Smith for $250 with Col Ardell, Tommy's backer, the stakes having been Tommy's backer, the stakes having been

day last.
Articles were signed on Saturday afternoon by Billy Maber and Jimmy Lawson for a fight to take place at the Pastime Athletic Club on the evening of March 8 next. The latter displayed some of his characteristics in his short lived fight with Conley on Thursday night last, and that he is a hard hitter a foxy and clever fighter and withal a man who can take any amount of pun-ishment, was undeniably proven. Of Maber's cleverness and hard-hitting little need be said, as both are too well known, but it remains to be seen whether he can get into his old-time condition within the somewhat limited space of time at his disposal, and whether or not he is vested with the whether or not he is vested with the same power of endurance exhibited by his Maori opponent. That Maber is game of course no one will deny; but if all that has been said of his condition be true, it will take him longer than two weeks to get into trim. Two things, however, are certain and those are that Lawson and Maber are two of the clearest light-weights ever interests. the cleverest light-weights ever imported from Australia, and the fight will be "for blood" from start to finish.

The Pastime Club announces that it has already completed arrangements for a match between George La Blanche and William Child for a $750 purse, of which $150 goes to the loser.

An important meeting of New York sporting men was held there on Thursday night last, for the purpose of arranging a scale of weights by which all championship battles must be fought. On motion a committee of three, consisting of Keating, Early and Lumley, were appointed to select a list of weights, with this result: Bantamweight class limit, 105 pounds; featherweights, with this result: Bantam-weight class limit, 105 pounds; feather-weight class limit, 115 pounds; special-weight class limit, 135 pounds; light-weight class limit, 135 pounds; middle-weight class limit, 155 pounds; special-weight class limit, 155 pounds, and all over 155 pounds heavy-weight. over 165 pounds heavy-weight.

THIRTY-MILE RACE. Among the out-of-door attractions offered for this afternoon is a thirty-mile race over the Agricultural Park track for a purse of $500, between Henry Peppers of this city, Alfred Garcia of San Gabriel and Miguel Pryor of San Juan, which should prove of interest to those who have never seen a long disthose who have never seen a long-distance race. A purse of $50 will also be offered for a half-mile or seven furlongs race, for maiden horses, entries to be made at the track.

President Brush of the Cincinnaticulus of the opinion that it is not just and fair for players to expect the club to bear the expense of their preliminary practice. He is of the opinion that a player should report at the time his contract begins, in the best possible fettle. In other words, he should bear the expense of his own training just as a pugilist or a wrestler does when he is a pugilist or a wrestler does when he is about to engage in a contest. There are a great many other magnates who share President Brush's opinion.

I recognize in the writer of the article the same member of the San Joaquin Shooting Club who is supposed to have killed seventy-five sprig-tail ducks with one shot. Rats! I know better than that. I watched him a few days later, when he blazed away 180 shots at ducks and never touched a feather.

My master, whom I adore, and who, by the way, never misses, kills all the ducks I can possibly retrieve, and if it was not for him the gentleman who libeled us so unjustly would have returned to Los Angeles many a time with an empty duck strap and would have been obliged to stop in a game store on his way home. I have retrieved one or two spoonbills for this ungrateful man, but I will do it no more. Even the patience and forbearance of a thoroughbred Gordon setter is limited, and if he does not revoke his insulting statement of January 18 I will break off my friendly relations with him, and will at first sight retaliate by inserting my teeth in the broadest part of his trousers.

TIPPERARY.

Prunus Simoni.

Prunus Simoni.
[Selma Enterprise.]

One of the most prominent fruits for profit is the Simoni prune (prunus simoni.) It has a combination of fine qualities to recommend it. It is early, being ready for slipment about the middle of June. It is then a rich apricotyellow, but even in this immature state is sweet, aromatic and palatable. From this stage it ripens to a dark, rich red. Shipped in its yellow state it ripens, like the Bartlett year, in transit, and arrives in New York or Chicago in prime condition. It has been successfully shipped to the cities named and to Liverpool by a grower in Tulare county. The fruit is of a farge size with a very small pit. The fiesh is a deep yellow and has a rich aromatic flavor peculiar to itself and suggestive of pineapple. Mr. Motheral, who happened in as we write, says: "I have seen it ripen here and I consider it the most delicious of the prune family." Prof. Wickson, author of "California Fruits," told the writer that he thinks it the best early proper. writer that he thinks it the best early prune we have. ous disease called the "yellows."

There is encouragement in the fact announced in a recent dispatch from San Francisco that the peach-growers of California have set their faces squarely against the "yellows." A quarantine has been declared some 65,000 Delaware peach trees, and it is said that they would be burned on account of their suspicious character. That is an heroic remedy, truly, but the California people have reason enough for drastic measures. They must eschew and abhor all the ways and devices of the Delaware peach tree if devices of the Delaware peach tree if they would enjoy earthly prosperity and the satisfaction of a clear con-science. To admit that the "yellows" is (or are) in your peach orchard is the first step toward the spreading broad-cast of reports that all the peaches of an entire State have been irretrievably blighted. Let California profit by Dela ware's example.

How to Pack Flowers.

How to Pack Flowers.
[Hartford Courant.]

Cut flowers are constantly sent through the mails, but seldom in such a manner as to preserve their bloom and freshness. To effect this, pack in a wooden box, not using cardboard. Line the box with wadding or cotton batting, laying over this a sheet of tissue paper. Then lay the flowers, not on top of each other, but in rows, side by side, the blossoms of each row on the stems of their neighbors. Pack closely, otherwise the flowers will be displaced and injured in the journey. Before packing they should stand in water for several hours, in order to absorb moisture enough to keep them from withering. It is not well to sprinkle them too heavily after they are in the box, for without air this is likely to produce mildew.

The old idea was that facial cruptions were due to a "blood humor," for which they gave potash. Thus the old Sarsaparillas con-tain potash, a drastic mineral, that instead tain potash, a drastic mineral, that instead of decreasing, actually creates more eruptions. FRESH LITERATURE.

FIRST FAMILY OF TASAJARA. By Bret HARTE. (Boston and New York: Hough-ton, Mifflin & Company.*) A story from the pen of Bret Harte is like a promise of something pleasing, for Bret Harte is an artist whose color are words and whose touch is wonderfully true, both to nature and humanity In the volume before us he paints Cali fornia's woods and vales and streams, and her bright skies, as only one can, who knows her well. And her people! What pictures he gives us of rural life and of unconventional manners. They are pictures that make us smile while they enlist our interest.

The story of "A First Family of Tasa-jara" has its counterpart, doubtless, in the history of many a "first family" in California, and the way in which titles to land have been acquired. But there is much of romance in the pages, and the process of evolution through which the awkward, rustic, but beautiful country girl is transformed into the fascinating and accomplished belle, and the bright boy, with no helpful companion-ship but that found in his books, grows up to noble, self-made manhood, cannot fail to interest the reader. Take this lit-

... and GAZETTEER!

A Condensation of the Encyclopedia Britannica, Chambers's Encyclopedia, etc., with the addition of much original matter treating of AMERICAN SUBJECTS.

Illustrated with eighty full-page colored maps and nearly two thousand engravings.

SUMMARY .

EVER before has there been offered to the public a book of reference approaching this in completeness, compactness, of cheapness. It contains 720 pages of encyclopedic information concerning all branches of knowledge, comprising, in a condensed form stripped of unnecessary verbiage, the very cream of the Encyclopedia. Britannica and the latest edition of Chambers's Encyclopedia, with the addition of a great many American subjects found in neither of the larger encyclopedias.

Besides being a comprehensive gazetteer of universal knowledge, it is also a complete Atlas of the World, containing eighty full-page maps. Some idea may be gained of the magnitude of this wonderful work and the vast number of subjects treated of, from the following table:

| Number of Pages. | Size of Page. | Total Number of Pages. | Number of Words. | Number of Subjects. | Length of Columns, Inches. | Number of Words for One Cent. | |
| 720 | 73/4×10 | 200,800 | 1,700,000 | 18,000 | 21,600 | 3,500 | |

If the columns were placed end to end they would reach over one-third of a mile Just think of 1800 feet of choice reading, compiled from the latest sources, on 18,000 subjects of daily interest to everybody, for a sum per word that requires five figures to express the fraction, and 80 Full-Page Maps, Free, the whole forming the largest, latest, and most complete Family Cyclopedia ever produced.

The maps are corrected to date and beautifully colored by the publishers' celebrated patent-plate process to distinguish States and political boundaries. The type is new and clear, the paper good and firm.

The ordinary price of an atlas alone, containing these maps, would be at least as much as the retail price of this entire book, of which they form but a single feature.

The volume is issued in two styles: Handsomely bound in cloth, with gold title, and side stamp, $8.00. Elegantly bound in half Bussia, with gold title, and side stamp, $10.00.

How Washington's Birthday Will be Celebrated.

A Y.M.C.A. Anniversrry Meeting Held Last Night.

Why You Should Contribute to the Citrus Fair.

Sunday's Happenings in and Near Town San Gabriel Notes-The News in Briet-Personal

[Branch office, No. 50 East Colorado street, where news, adver isements and orders for THE TIMES are received.]

If it were possible for Mr. Washington best known, perhaps, as the "Father of His Country," to pay a visit to Pasadena on this, his birthday, he could not help feeling flattered over the attention here shown him, and the enthusiastic manner in which the memory of his illustrious life and deeds is perpetuated from year to year. Today the fashion that has been popular here ever since Pasadena has be lar here ever since Pasadena has been a town, of casting business cares aside and having a gay and festive time on February 22, will be duly observed, and the festivities are likely to surpass those of any previous year. The events mapped out for the day are duly chronicled below, and the citizens who cannot find something in the list to amuse him must be of a decidedly descention to the first own of middle. dyspeptic turn of mind.

THE ATHLETIC CLUB
will take a hand in the sport, and as many members as desire to indulge in some members as desire to indulge in some wholesome sport are requested to meet at the gymnasium at 9 o'clock. Those who took the cross-country run yesterday are eager for another one this morning, but if this idea does not prove popular the assemblage of brawn and muscle will adjourn to the park on South Raymond avenue and there participate in whatever kind of outdoor sports is best to their liking. A baseball match is one of the possibilities, and if such an event comes off the fun will be fast and furious.

At the tennis grounds

AT THE TENNIS GROUNDS on Walnut street an open handicap tour-nament will open at the same hour. The events will be limited to men's singles, and events will be limited to men's singles, and the entries include representative players from several outside clubs and the crack racquet manipulators of the home club. Through the liberality of ex-President Summers the winner will be awarded a valuable gold medal, designed by Mr. Summers and manufactured expressly to his order. The second best man will receive a silver medal of the same design. Lunch will be served at noon, and all friends of the club who visit the court will be hospitably entertained. There will be no unnecessary delay in order to bring the tournament to a close today.

EXCITING RACES

will be the order of the day at the Gentle-man's Driving Park northwest of town. The sports will begin early in the afternoon

The sports will begin early in the afternoon, and will be under the direction of the Lugo brothers, which is sufficient guarantee that they will prove interesting. The chiefevent of interest will be a 20-mile race between A. Lugo and R. Corona. Each rider will have fine horses and change horses every mile. There will also be trotting races, flat races and lassoing of wild animals. An admission fee of 50 cents will be charged and the Driving Park Association will come in for a share of the proceeds.

The postomce will be open between the nours of 10 and 11 a.m. and 4 and 5 p.m. There will be one delivery by carrier.

The banks and schools will be closed all day. Many of the merchants will take a day off and keep their stores closed. Some decorations in the way of flags and bunting would not be out of place.

The Citrus Fair opens in Los Angeles March 2, at Hazard's Pavilion, and lasts a week. Pasadena will have a display and the citizens have been asked to contribute a sufficient sum to defray the necessary expenses. About $100 has already been subscribed and it is desired to double this amount without much delay. The following facts bearing on the matter are given so that contributions can not be withheld on the ground that there is no telling where on the ground that there is no telling where the money goes.

on the ground that there is no telling where the money goes.

Pasadena has secured a very prominent position almost in the center of the pavilion for her display. The design originated with F. Martin Summers, and is sure to attract much attention. It will consist of an octagonal-shaped pagoda with eight supporting pillars and surmounted by a massive crown thirteen feet in diameter. The crown will be filled in solid with oranges and the pillars will be attractively trimmed with bunting, etc. Inside the pagoda will be a tabled shaped after an octagonal pyramid on which will be displayed the bulk of the fruit.

mid on which will be displayed the bulk of the fruit.

This design will compare favorably with that of any other locality, but it takes money to build it and fill it with fruit, and this is where the $200 comes in. It is vastly important that the exhibit be first-class in every particular, for this is the time of all others when the relative merits of the various fruit-growing districts are subjected to critical comparison, and the locality that has the best display is the one that reaps the most benefit.

President Masters of the Board of Trade will issue an appeal for contributions, and there is no doubt but that the $100 yet needed will be promptly forthcoming. Money may beleft at the Pasadena National Bank or with any member of the committee in charge, consisting of W.H. Weight, J. W. Banbury, R. Williams, James Clarke and Calvin Hartwell.

The pastor, Rev. Dr. George H. Deere, who has built the church organization here, preached the sermon, choosing for his text Job viii:11: "Can the rush grow by without Job vill:11: "Can the rush grow up with-out mire? Can the flag grow without water?" He spoke of the necessity of en-vironment to growth, and how, out of the commonplace, beauty may come: how the new church has grown from the old hall commonplace, beauty may come: how the new church has grown from the old hall service.

The building is constructed of brown sandstone brought from Flagstaff, Ariz., and is the only stone church edifice in Riverside. The style of architecture is that of the sixteenth century, known as Norman Gothic, and presents a very handsome and substantial appearance.

The main entrance is through massive doors on Lemon street into a vestibule floored with marble from Slover Mountain, near Colton. Opposite this entrance is the pulpit, with its handsomely carved oak fittings, and back of it the choir and organ alcove. The main auditorium has an inclined floor and is provided with heavy, carved oak pews that will seat three hundred people. The ceiling follows the contour of the steep roof, and is supported by heavy carved braces. But the ceiling, the pulpit, the pews, the carpet, the pretty gas fixtures, do not hold the attention. The eye at once turns to the magnificent memorial windows on the north side of the church. Dr. and Mrs. Deere spent their summer vacation in the East, and much of the time was given to the study of church windows. Many designs were drawn, and by combining parts from each the handsome windows in this church were produced. The colors are bright, but not gaudy, and the windows being out of the direct rays of the sun, cut glass and jewels are used in profusion. The central window is given by Dr. and Mrs. Deere, the one on its right by A. S. White and that on the left by William Finch. On the right and left of the pulpit, on two smaller windows, are the La Rue and Hall memorials, given by the widow of Seneca La Rue and by Priestly Hall. on two smatter windows, are the Larker and Hall memorials, given by the widow of Seneca La Rue and by Priestly Hall. The entrance on Seventh street opens into the spacious room known as the ladies' parlor, having these windows presented by the Minneapolis and Rochester, Minn., and La Crosse, Wis., churches, at each of which Dr. Deere was at one time pastor. Back of this room, to the west, are two small rooms, to be used upon the occasion of social gatherings, the kitchen and pantry. These are provided with everything required upon such occasions.

The church was built and furnished at a cost of $25,000, and is one of which not only this congregation, but the whole of Riverside, may well be proud. The dedica-

A number of reckless boys were running along beside the train, grabbing the railing and jumping on and off the steps. Engineer John Hooper had driven the boys away from the engine on the southbound trip, and at this time Conductor C. H. Henry had been upon the rear platform driving the boys off and telling them to keep away from the train. He had just started through the rear car when it began jumping and he knew that one of the boys had failen under the wheels, and he grabbed the bell rope. At the same time the screams of the boys in the street attracted the engineer, and he proceeded to stop the train. Looking back they saw lying upon its face a mass of human flesh that had been ground under the wheels of both trucks of the rear car. It was the body of Belcher Altman, a boy 7 years of age and the only son of a widow employed at the Mariboro. He had evidently caught the railing of the rear platform of the front coach and slipped and was swung around under the other car and instantly killed. His head was crushed, leg broken, hips crushed and the flesh torn from one arm. The body was taken to Los Angles yesterday afternoon.

The city enjoyed a much-needed res from the saloon fight yesterday. Not a single excited crowd was noticed on the streets. Some days the crowds collect in great numbers and many threatening re-marks are made, and difficulties narrowly averted. The ball will begin rolling livelies than ever when the next two cases come up, as arrangments have been made for a more vigorous defense even than in the two preceding cases.

THE EXPERIMENT STATION.

A visit to the experimental station and A visit to the experimental station and the Chino sugar factory reveals many things of interest to Pomona. At the experimental station this year are many acres of different varieties of fruit trees, olives, etc., and it is a fact worthy of note that this especial spot eacaped the frost almost entirely, at least no damage was done to speak of. Prof. Shinn, of Berkeley University, who visited the station, expressed himself as highly pleased with the outlook there.

THAT VENTURA CHARIVARL How Uncle Peter Boyle Got Away With the Whole Party.

The following brief item appeared in the Ventura correspondence of THE Times yesternay morning: Piers yesternay morning:

Peter Boyle and Eliza Smatherdean were married at the latter's "residence Friday night. The groom is 82 and the bride is 50, and probably, to show their esteem, a number of men and boys went down after the ceremony and made "Rome howl" for a time. Old Peter went out to stop it and some one hit him in the eye and cut his face. He tried to get a warrant out yesterday, but could not produce enough evidence.

A gentleman who arrived from Ven-tura yesterday, and who witnessed the whole affair, says the story is too good not to be told in full. Mr. Boyle is generally known as "Uncle Peter," and has many friends in Ventura, but he would not stand a charivari, and from all accounts he had the best of the fight.

The old couple had failed to close their front blinds after their guests had their front blinds after their guests had lett on the evening of the marriage and the fish-horn mob could plainly see the ancient bride and groom through the big windows. "Uncle Peter" sat on one side the rousing fire while his lovely bride graced another rocking chair on the other side. They were facing each other, and were gently rocking as they discussed the events of the evening.

All of a sudden and without any warning whatever bombs and firecrackers sidewalk.

As soon as the first volley was fired half a score of able-bodied men, who were armed with fishhorns and tin pans, cleared the fence at one jump and were proceeding to turn the band loose when the front door opened with a slam and "Uncle Peter" came flying out like a cyclone. The musical wing of the mob had reached a spot a few feet from the door, where they had huddled together, when the old man rushed among them.

The first man he ran against is one of the best-known men in Ventura, and he was so astonished by the groom's sudden appearance that he did not know what to do, so he held out his hand and pretended to believe that "Uncle Peter" had come out to invite them in, but such had come out to invite them in, but such had come out to invite them in, but such a thing was evidently furthest from the old man's mind, for he grasped the business man's hand with his left and let drive with his right with such force that the innocent tinhorn tooter was sent sprawling on his back, where he remained for fully ten minutes.

This gave the rest of the gang time to realize that "Uncle Peter" was on the warpath, so they dropped their pans and horns and started to retreat, but they were not quick enough, for another one was caught and soundly thrashed in less than ten seconds; two-thirds of the gang was headed off by the enraged old man, who rushed ahead of them, and was cleaning out the second man, and before they knew where they were they found themselves tangled up in a barbed wire fence in the rear of "Uncle Peter's"

Just as they became thoroughly tan-Just as they became thoroughly tangled in the fence the old man swooped down on them. He had armed himself with a heavy board, and as each man was securely caught by the head and shoulders the old man proceeded to paddle each one of his enemies in the region of the pistol pocket in a most vigorous manner. He moved from man to man with such speed that in a few seconds fifteen voices were howling with pain, and the noise could be heard for ten blocks.

for ten blocks. After the old man had thrashed them to his heart's content he threw his paddle down and entered the house and nothing more was seen of him that night. The mob took their departure as soon as possible, and not a single one had the courage to toot a horn or tamper

In a Railway Car on High Legs.

[New York Commercial Advertiser.]
The Hotel Lincoln has a guest who has undergone in the past three months a series of what were to him remarkable experiences. He is Maximis Soho, a young Greek who has been brought over here to complete his studies in theology. When the proper time comes he will take his place as pastor of one of the Greek churches in this country. Young Soho spoke through an interpreter, because he is not as yet familiar enough with the English speech to let it trip merrily from his tongue. "Three months ago," he said, "I was riding over the mountains to my studies on an ass and had said. "I was riding over the mountains to my studies on an ass and had never seen a ship or a railroad train. One day the good father at the monastery told me what had been asked of him to do, and that, if I chose, my mission in life might be to preach in America. I said yes. But it was hard to go so far away. I went on ships and railway trains to a steamship in which I came here, and it was all very wonderful. I did not get frightened, because I had read of such trains, but when I got to America I was carried through the air in a railway car on high legs. I caught hold of my companions and was in fear. I no longer fear what you call the high railroads. I laugh at my foolish fears of the first day."

Cost of Planting Deciduous Orchares [California Fruit Grower.]

[California Fruit Grower.]
In planting orchards the cost to a considerable extent depends upon the varieties of trees to be planted, the location of the land in regard to transportation and nurseries, the character of the soil and availability of labor; but for average commercial varieties and location and ordinarily good soil, the following figures of cost per acre are about as near correct as observation and experience can make thems:

I have written this with my blood, this the 8th day of January, 1820. I have tried to dig steps in the rocks, but cannot and must die. With my dying breath I declare that I am innocent of any wrong to my cousin."

The records of Chihuahua show that a man named Manuel 'Perez at one time lived in this city and that he suddenly disappeared, at the same time also did his cousin. It is now believed that, murdering the cousin, Perez went back to Spain and has probably died long ere this. The place where the bones were found is frequently visited, but has never before been explored, and for this reason was an excellent place to hide the crime.

After suffering for years with stomach trouble I was at last induced to try Dr. Wong Him, of No. 69 Upper Main street. Los Angeles, He examined me and pronounced my trouble tumor in the stomach. After two months' treatment, during which time I felt greatly relieved and benefited, he pronounced me entirely cured, and from that time to the present, which is four months, I have not felt the least return of my old trouble. I am able to eat many things which formerly would distress me very much. Therefore I feel that I can do nothing else than to recommend the doctor to all who can be induced to try him. I hereby extend him my most heartfelt thanks for his services to me.

February 22, 1892.

The past week has brought us lots of new goods in every department of the house. Superior classes or merchandise which we have elaborated on I small quantities, we have elaborated on I small quantities, we perfence with the better classon goods in the past six months has been goods in mentary that we have been induced to go into it to its fullest extent. As our ratio of profit is uniform, you will find all classes of goods sold in like proportion. As far as prices are concerned you will always find us under any house in town, and if, perchance, it should happen that we are not, we will consider it a kindness to be informed by our patrons, and will make our prices even lower than any quotations mentioned. Those of our patrons who remember our domestic department in the center aisle of our store, and the difficulty experienced in reaching these counters, owing to the large number of purchasers to be served, and the limited space, will find more accommodation and a larger stock in the new quarters, formerly occupied by our dress goods department. It is the height of our ambition, now that the dress goods and sik stocks are moved to the center aisles, to line these counters with as eager and expectant patrons prometry would be an our constitution of de inch plaid wool dress goods as were buying cotton fabrics. It requires time, but, with the inducements that we hold out, it must eventually come. We shall offer a line of de inch plaid wool dress goods in gray effects. You will find them to be the cheapest merchandise ever sold by any establishment in the known world. Mind the width, one yard and a quarter, and the price will be

25c

This is an item which should call out every lady in Los Angeles that has any wants in the way of dress goods for 25 cents per yard. As we are desirous of having this go as far as possible, and only having a limited quantity, we must restrict the purchase to eight yards for any one purchaser.

The next inducement to visit our stores early Monday morning offered by the dress goods department is a line of 46-inch allowool, solid colored, silk-finished Henriettas and Serges, the value of which ranged from $1.25 to $1.05 per yard. These goods could not be imported for $1.00 per yard. Owing to the limited quantity we have of them, and wishing to make them go as far as possible, we must restrict the purchase to ten yards for any single person. Price, 75c.

Considering the quality of these goods, and they also come in black, we must say that at 75 cents per yard they are even a greater value than the first item at 25 cents. You all know what the French all-wool Challie is, and you know the price is just as staple as it is on a calico. There is less money in handling these goods at the regular prices, 65 and 75 cents per yard, than there is in selling cotton flannels. We will place them on sale Monday at

49c.

We will call your attention to the fact that the colored dress goods which we had on sale during the past week will remain so during the present one, and those who were unable to get to town, owing to the in-clement weather, will have an opportunity to avail themselves of this offer.

to avail themselves of this offer.

In black dress goods there is not a house in the State of California that can show you the quality for the money that we quote. We commence our line at 18c for half wool Serges and Henriettas. At 35c you buy a French imported cashmere or Serge, 38 to 40 inches wide, all-wool. We could not land these goops for 46c in New York. At 50c you are buying a quality that we always got 75c for. At 75c we sell you the line that we always got 67c for. At 75c we sell you the line that we always got 98c for, and it embraces all-wool serges. Henriettas, fancy novelty black goods, silk fancy Drap de Alma. We tell you the truth when we say these goods can never be replaced for the money we are selling them at.

For 98c we are selling you our $1.50 quality of black silk warp Henrietta, our black silk warp glorias, our silk finish fancy Serges and Henriettas, 46 in. wide.

At 85c we sell you a line of fancy novelty dress goods, 42 inches wide. They arrived yesterday—are the very newest creations and under other circumstances we could not offer to sell them under $1.25 per yard.

offer to sell them under $1.26 per yard.

In colored and figured India silks we are selling a line of $2$-inch at $6$. We do not want to confuse these goods with the quality that is being sold at $3$\cdot \cdot \cdot

At 74c and at 85c we sell you some of the handsomest printed India silks that you have ever seen, and certainly the best value for the money ever offered in Los Angeles. At 98c a line of sublime printed India silks. We have heretofore declined to sell them at 81.84 because actual comparison with any-thing in this town has proven them to be 25c per yard cheaper than the closest competi-tion. A number of patrons inform us that they can buy a similar quality at the same price. To be lower than the lowest we have marked them at

We would advise our friends that at 98c this is the cheapest piece of silk we have in our stock. We are offering specially a line of colored surabs of sublime quality at 50c per yard. We have all the new shades and tell you candidly that we cannot replace them when these are gone under 75c per yard.

Our special sale on black dress silks, all different weaves, at 75c will continue during the week as long as we have the goods. We can emphasize the fact that there never has at any time in the mercantile history of this town, at any sale, for any cause, under any circumstances, been merchandise such as we have mentioned above quoted at these prices.

In our wash fabric stock you will find the newest things, new materials created this season, new designs printed and woven, cotton Bedford cords copied from the finest imported wool materials with the handsomest printed designs. We are offering these goods, and they should command 25c per 15c.

A line of handsome printed cotton Chevrons. These are also imitations of fine French dress goods. When made up it would be a difficult matter to tell the difference between them and a fine all-wool dress goods. This line should command 25c per yard and we have marked them to sell as

Some very handsome styles in fine French sateens as well as new material called wash silk. When made up it requires almost an expert to discern the difference between this material and the real silk. These goods ought never to leave the store even at a special sale under 25c, but they will be sold if you come early Monday morning at 15c. A line of black satin striped cotton dress goods; a most handsome material. One you cannot resist purchasing if you want any-thing in black cotton material. These goods would be low priced at 40c. We will let them go at 25c.

In our dress gingham department we are showing a line of newest spring creations that were purchased by us to sell at 124c, and not intended to be opened until the middle of March: but, to Illustrate to you how cheap we can sell goods, they will be on sale at

A new line of shirtings—the finest material that we have ever laid upon our counter, and you know that we have shown some fine shirting effects, but we have never had any to equal these at double the price. They come in light, medium and dark colors, the designs being different from any heretofore shown. Price will be 10 and 15 ets.

A line of choice printed new effects called Mousseline d'Chantilly. This is solid ground with exquisite printings, comes in all new colors, is about the same width as a gingham. Goods that were purchased to sell at 12½ c per yard, and you will recognize it to be about the cheapest cloth for the quality you ever purchased

We are headquarters for bleached and brown muslins, Canton fiannels, apron checks, ginghams, etc., selling them at re-tail at the same price we do at wholesale.

The items we have quoted in the two foregoing classes, being the principal ones in our stores, will, if you have any interest, bring you in for inspection. When you are here, walk around the store and see what inducements low prices will cause you to invest. As you walk down the aisle on the lefthand side, our ribbon stock first claims your notice. You will find all silk ribbons, in gros grains with satin edge, the new effects in watered, some handsome noveity ribbons for millinery purposes and fancy work.
A little further on you come to our stock of for millinery purposes and fancy work.

A little further on you come to our stock of veilings and laces. The most immense variety of each, and the prices at which we sell them will impress you. Most merchants get even on notions and laces on the shortcomings of their other stocks. Ours is sold as close as domestics. Here we are showing all the new things in cotton and sills: Point d'Irlande, Guipure d'Genee, Chantilly and Point d'Esprit laces in narrow, wide and medium flouncings. The latest novelties arriving by express daily. This is going to be a large lace season. All sorts of materials, both cotton and woolen, are to be trimmed and garnished with laces. Our trimming department this season will be the largest, handsomest and most complete that we have ever shown.

On the opposite side you will find our drug on the opposite side you will find our drug department, where we sell all sorts of perfumery, powders, patent medicines, in short, everything that is kept in a drug store not necessary to the compounding of prescriptions, at cut prices. The fact that we have declined to be dictated to at what prices we shall sell these goods has caused us trouble in procurins them at all times. Still we have a full line or everything in stock today and sell them at our famous cut prices.

Next you go to our hostery department. Here you can find anything in silk, lisle, cotton or wool. We are selling a line of seamless, fast black, warranted hose at 18c a pair; they ordinarily sell at 25c. We are selling a line of all-wool Cashmere seamless hose at 16½ which we sold earlier in the season at 35c. We keep black cotton hose as high as 35c. per pair. Thigh lengths in black lisle thread cannot be bought at $1.25 wholesale; we sell at 98c. In silk hostery we keep them as high as $6.00 per pair.

The next department is our ladies' underwear and corsets, in charge of a lady who thoroughly, understands her business. From 50c to 8 you can purchase a corset and rest assured that at the price it cannot be equaled elsewhere.

In ladies' underwear you can buy vests

In ladies' underwear you can buy vests from 8%c to as high as you choose to pay. We are selling a wool vest, however, for 50c, price of which earlier in the season was $1. We still have a few handsome cloaks that are fur trimmed. They sold earlier in the season at from $10 to $55. The $10 and under have been market $5, and those under $55 have been marked at $10.

have been market $6, and those under $25 have been marked at $10.

Our advance stock of spring millinery is all in. Our flowers, trimmings, ornaments and hats are here. We do not intend to have all these me until next month, but we have all these me until next month, but we all these me until next month, but we all these me until the want to say a word in reference to what we want to say a word in reference to what we have the same that we use here as well as in San Francisco and the same prices that the jobbers sell the retailers. You can readily understand when we tell you that in San Francisco and here we sell more millinery than all other millinery stores in Los Angeles combined. All we ask is to give us a look, then go anywhere you please, and if our merchandise is not cheaper of course you will buy elsewhere. This is to be a season of smallshapes, with little conical crowns, and a good deal of chip is used with fancy lace effects and braids, it is to be a very large lace and flower year, and colors are to be worn exclusively. It is as it should be, as black is certainly too somber and dark for our semi-tropical and flowery country.

Everybody wears shoes. It is a matter of importance to buy the best shoes you can for the least money. We are now carrying the finest makes of men's and ladies' shoes. In men's we carry exclusively Hanan & Sons and Lily, Bracket & Co.'s fine shoes in quality from $2.50 to $7.00 a pair.

In laddes' shoes we carry the celebrated makes of Curtis & Wheeler, P. Cox & Co. of Rochester, N. Y., and Jones & Co. of San Francisco. We save you from 50c to & per pair for the same quality less than you can buy elsewhere. If any shoe does not wear well or give you satisfaction, we will rectify it and make it right by either giving you another pair or refunding the money.

and attaining it by selling the best mer-chandise for the least money consistent with existence.

Curtis & Wheelers's fine Ladies' Shoes from $3.25 to $6.50. Our line of Children's and Boys' Shoes is unsurpassed for quality and price. Another advantage you have in buying footwar from us is that you have a guarantee of the dura-bility of every pair of shoes purchased, no matter at what price.

In Men's Straw Hats we have received from 40 to 50 cases which we have stored away and will not open until the middle of next month and it is urgent for us to dispose of our fur and wool stock before placing straw goods in our fixtures. To this end we are making a sweeping sale.

We have a line of Fur Felt Hats manufactured for us and bearing our imprint. a hat worth $3.00 for

Another line of Hats worth 84.55 we have cut to $2.25. These comprise the finest grades of French fur that are made.

In Boys' Wool Hats and Fur Crushes, as well as Men's Wool Hats, you can buy a hat now for 96c that sold as high as $1.00. now for 49c that sold as high as $1.00.

In men's furnishing goods we are making gigantic reductions preparing for our summer trade and cutting prices on full stuff at less than the price to manufacture, preferring to put our capital in merchandise during the summer months that may pay us a profit instead of packing goods and investing it in dead merchandise. Men's Scarlet All-Wool Underwear, cost $1.50 to make, sells at $2.00, we have cut to 98c.

Men's Indigo Blue Mixed Underwear goods that sold at $1.00 we have cut to 50c.

Items then we are not in it on underwear.

In Men's White Laundried Shirts we call your attention to three items. One at 50c, one at 75c, one at $1.00 if you can buy any where, from 55c of the price we dust, then we have the sky your patronage. Our 50c shirts at sak your patronage. Our 50c shirt is at swell laundried as any shirt you patronage. They are perfect fitters and according to the quality are made of the linest shirt makers' muslins and linens.

In Boys' Waists we are selling all-wool fannel waists at 75c. The lowest quotation ever made was $1.00. our great reduction sale of Boys' Clothing is still going on. We are selling $2.50 suits for $2.00. There is not a clothing house in this town or elsewhere who pretends to be in competition with us on those prices. The $1.00 line is a Union Cassimere. The $5.00 line are all-wool goods. You will find a similar reduction in all our better class goods.

We have a very large stock and are anxious to reduce it just one-half. During this month we are selling in erchandise for the sake of selling it. We are candid with you when we tell you that profit is not considered, and in this remark we mean just what we say.

THE WATER QUESTION.

More Light on the Important Subject.

The Legal Aspects Set Forth at Considerable Length.

The Speeches of Hon. M. T. Allen and Judge Anderson

A Very Careful Exposition of the Sever Points Involved from a Strictly Leing Reading.

As everything bearing on the water question is of interest at this time, and there is a general demand for all reliable information bearing on this im portant subject, the speeches of United States District Attorney Allen and Judge Anderson, delivered before the special committee of the Council on water supply, Saturday, brief synopses of which were published in THE TIMES yesterday morning, are given this morning substantially in full. Mr. Allen was the first to address the committee the main points of his speech are a

MR. ALLEN'S SPEECH.

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Committee: I take it, as President Bonsail has expressed it, that this request for an interchange of views arises from the examination which we, as members of the Citizen's Committee or in their interest, gave the subject of our water rights and the best method to be adopted to protect the city some two years ago. Some of the matters which were then of importance to us in determining the course of conduct recommended have passed from my memory, and if in my present statement I have forgotten or misstate facts or conditions I will take it kindly to be corrected. MR. ALLEN'S SPEECE.

or conditions I will take it kindly to be corrected.

The first question you asked us to give our views upon is as to whether or not there is a restriction, in our opinion, as to the amount of the bonds which the city may issue to construct water works—a restriction to 5 per cent. I take it that in view of the fact that our statutes, as now existing, authorize the issuance of bonds to the extent of 15 per cent. of the taxed value, that this inquiry comes on account of that provision of the State constitution, under the sub-head of restriction of indebtedness, which says that no debt shall be created—bonded debt—except a vote be had upon the proposition and that it shall be paid within twenty years from the time of its being contracted. I know that eminent lawyers are of the opinion that his restriction in the constitution restricts municipal corporations to 5 per stricts municipal corporations to 5 per cent. of the taxable value of property of the city. I don't agree with that proposition; but there is sufficient of doubt thrown about it that, as a pracdoubt thrown about it that, as a practical proposition, it would be a dimicult thing for a municipality in Callfornia, under that provision of the constitution, to dispose of bonds in excess of 5 per cent. of its taxable property. You know the timidity of capital, and as long as there could be a reasonable question raised as to the validity of a bond, just that long the bond is unof a bond, just that long the bond is unmarketable.

of a bond, just that long the bond is unmarketable.

Now, coming to your second and third inquiries, which are in some sense connected, first, whether the Council can legally proceed to construct water works without first acquiring the ownership of existing works; and, second, whether they can lease whatever rights they may have in the waters of the Los Angeles River. Your question as to whether they can legally proceed to construct water works, I presume, shall be taken to mean proceed to construct and operate water works. I imagine no one will contend that you have not the right, as the custodians of the public streets and alleys, if you see fit, at lic streets and alleys, if you see fit, at your own expense, to lay down pipes and mains in your streets, not interfering with other vested rights. But the question then presents itself whether—under the existing contracts of today you could operate a water sys-tem through those pipes after you had constructed them during the existence constructed them during the existence of the present contracts. Now to get at that matter we will have to look at the nature of the property the city has in the water of the river, the nature of the title of the city and the character the municipality occupies in relation thereto and the nature of the original contract the city made in 1868.

How do you hold these rights, gentlemen? My view of it is and was, at the time of this examination, that you hold these rights as you do the streets and public alleys—in trust only for the benefit of the public.

public alleys—in trust only for the benefit of the public.

In 1868 this city, having before that time appropriated certain waters from the river, then as trustee being possessed of certain rights to take from the river and divert certain waters, made a contract with one Beaudry, Griffin and others, by which those people should take and use this trust property in the line of the trust for the benple should take and use this trust property in the line of the trust for the benefit of the public; that they should take and use the streets which you held in trust for the public use, and lay down pipes and conduct that water for the use of and for sale to the inhabitants, and the city agreed that for a period of thirty years, I believe it was, it would not permit any other persons to engage in like business, or use such water or the streets for such purpose; that is my recollection of the substance THIS is above all a woman's remedy—her truest friend.

be carried out in letter and in spirit. The spirit of it would be that the Council will be held to have contracted not to do themselves that which they agreed not to allow others to do.

Now, then, as to the third question involved, as to the validity of this charter which undertakes to prohibit the lease or disposition of the water owned by the city in the Los Angeles River, I would simply state in general terms that in my opinion it is an absolute nullity, and cannot in any wise control the Council in determining their legal rights, or be held to restrict their authority. Judge Anderson has said to me that he will give views more extended upon that proposition.

Now, then, you asked me to make any suggestions that I may desire to make in reference to relief in the premises. My suggestions were made, I believe, some year and a half ago and were published. I believed then, as I believe now, that it is practically without the power of this city to construct a water works system itself. Practically, if you were to undertake by condemnation, which I believe you might, and acquire all of the rights even of the Crystal Springs Company, or any other persons along the river, and of the pipes which I believe you might, and acquire all of the rights even of the Crystal Springs Company, or any other persons along the river, and of the pipes and mains of the old company, it is essential that you should have the money to pay the amount of the verdict of a jury as to the value of these properties. To put yourself in funds you would have to sell and negotiate your bonds. You could not practically by a tax raise an amount of money sufficient to do it, and you would have to issue your bonds. Then the question presents itself of your right to issue bonds and the possibility of their sale—whether there is any power today, legal power, constitutional power, in the municipality to issue a bond under the law as it now stands. The provision of the constitution is not self-executory, and the bond law as it now stands seems to me to be unwarranted.

Under the constitution as it now is, under the laws as they are now framed, the whole of that immense debt and obligation would rest upon our people of $8,000,000 or $4,000,000 to be paid within the meantime of ten years. In my mind the only practical solution of this whole matter is to enlist capital to form a corporation with sufficient means and with sufficient guarantees to go on and develop and lay mains and construct a thorough and complete system, both for irrigation and for domestic use, a system which will give you water which, when utilized upon the outlying territory, would bring in and make valuable this immense area of land which is today valueless and which is in sight of our City Hall. By organizing a corporation of that kind it may issue bonds, payable mense area of land which is today valueless and which is in sight of our City Hall. By organizing a corporation of that kind it may issue bonds, payable in, say, fifty years. You have it within your power to contract with them by which you can acquire all outstanding rights and all their property at first cost; the payment of it can be scattered over a period of years, and other people, besides those of us today who are struggling along under the depression of the present time, can be called upon to pay that debt. You can protect yourselves by guaranteeing or by some contract relations with that company by which you may deliver this some contract relations with that company by which you may deliver this water. You may collect the interest and pay it upon the bonds, you may pay the operating expenses, you may know each year by a mathematical calculation just what amount of money you have to raise; you would have it in your power then to direct that the city of Los Angeles, for its street sprinkling and for its fire purposes, should pay a proportion of this burden. Why should you not do that? As it is today, gentlemen, under the Spring Valley Company your rates must be sufficient to pay the interest upon the investment of your water company. Those rates come from whom? From the people who use the water company. Those rates come from whom? From the people who use the water, the citizens who use the water; it is an aggregate sum of which the city pays nothing. The vacant lot, the man who was the block, the man who has whole series out here unusual and water. whole acres out here unused and unoccupied in the city, waiting for you and me and other men to build it into value, pays nothing for the street sprinkling in front of their land. Now, if you have an aggregate sum to raise which you know, and you compel the city to pay a certain sum of the general amount for its street sprinkling and for its fre purposes, it reduces the aggregate amount you have to raise from consumers. You can arrange in your contract by which you can deliver and sell irrigating water outside; a revenue will be derived from that which will still lessen gating water outside; a revenue will be derived from that which will still lessen the amount you have to raise of this water rate to the actual consumer, and in place of the man with the dinner pail footing the bill you can reduce his rate to one-half the present prices, and yet furnish him the very same water, and possibly a better supply and a better pressure, and the city lose no money by the transaction.

The possibilities of that water are enormous if it is utilized, and you have it in your power, under this sort of a contract with a corporation, to utilize it a thing which you could not do practically under the law if you nudertook to place the burden upon the citizens now by a direct taxation to meet these serial bonds in order to realize an amount sufficient to acquire and construct the works yourself.

You have a wonderful, a valuable trust to execute. Do it in the interest of the people; lighten the burdens of today; let the next generation contribute day; let the next generation contribute to the cost of the city water. Millions are required to pave and construct needed improvements; do not destroy these opportunities by attempting a burden greater than the people can bear; do not increase our taxes until people shall be driven from the city, but rather invite capital from abroad to come and help us. I thank you for this invitation and for your attention.

ing purposes other than for water power." Judge Anderson continued: That, as I understand, is the meaning That, as I understand, is the meaning of that question, whether that limits your power. Eighteen months ago I had occasion to examine this section. The first thing that called my attention to it was investigating as to what was really the water rights of the city. I was told that the charter of the city gave the city certain water rights, that is supposing it was obtained by the leg-islative approval of the charter. If you will see here the first section is:

"The city of Los Angeles shall continue in the ownership and enjoyment of all rights to the water of the river of all rights to the water of the river Los Angeles heretofore vested in it, its predecessor or predecessors, including the pueblo of Los Angeles, and is hereby declared to have the full, free, and exclusive right to all the water flowing in the said river at any point from its source or sources, to the intersection of said river with the southern boundary of said city, and also the ownership of, and the right to develop, economize, control, use, and utilize all waters flowing beneath the surface in the bed of said river at any point or points between the points of termini above named."

When I first turned to these two sec-

When I first turned to these two sections it struck me as the most remarkable thing that Lever saw in my life to find a section of the kind within the charter of a city. This charter here was formed and organized under a power given by the Legislature to form a charter for the government of the city, and here were a couple of sections, one of them attempting to or apparently conferring a right of property and the other one limiting the use of that; neither of which came within the purview of the legislation under which that charter was passed. When I first turned to these two sec-legislation under which that charter was passed.

There was no power or authority in the parties passing this charter to have control of that question, and the declaration did not enlarge the rights you had already. I will call your attention to this first section as bearing upon the construction of the second section. Suppose they had in this first section said that, although you had those rights before, you shall have them no longer. Would that have any effect upon your rights? The property was vested in you and the Legislature or parties passing this charter could not take it away from you. If it was you and the Legislature or parties passing this charter could not take it away from you. If it was vested it was an absolute right to that water and property to hold it just the same as any other individual and they could not have deprived you of that property. Now I come to the second section. Can they deprive you of any attribute of property? What are the attributes of property? It is the privilege to own it, sell it, lease it and manage it as you please; therefore, I say this section is a nullity, it don't come within the purview of the Legislature. They cannot strip you of your rights or the citizens of Los Angeles here of the rights they always had in that water. Not only that, if you will notice that section, if you will construe it, it is an absolute destruction of the property. What is property in anything, in a horse, in land, in anything? Property consists of the right to hold it, Property consists of the right to hold it, own it and use it as any individual owns his property. The very moment they say you shan't convert it, you shan't lease it or dispose of it in any other say you shan't convert it, you shan't lease it or dispose of it in any other way, or say you can't sell it to anybody excepting citizens living here, they deprive you of one of the most valuable rights you have ever had in the property. You have in the past sold that property to citizens living below the city here and in doing that you violate this law. They have deprived you of that right—it is something they cannot do. No Legislature and nobody else can deprive any individual of the ownership of his property here. It is the citizens that own it, the citizens, the people here, that own it in their aggregate capacity. In that capacity they own it just as any individual would own this property, nor the Legislature nor any one else can add to or take away from it, that is what I was a hy a ways. any one else can add to or take away from it; that is what I mean by saying those two sections are absolutely idle. There is no power on earth that can alienate the right to property which the citizens in the aggregate have in their property. I understand the mode by which this is passed. It is first passed upon by a committee, and then by the Council, and then by the vote of any one else can add to or take away by the Council, and then by the vote of the citizens and then approved by the Legislature; that is a species of legislation authorized by the act, and there was no power there that could deprive the individuals in this city of their right to the water; the majority cannot control it; it is vested by the law in the citizens here in the aggregate, and it citizens here in the aggregate, and it cannot be controlled. You cannot deprive the property of its attributes as property, and that is what this does. It puts it in such a situation that it abplutely deprives it of every attribute city to use water from some other source, both for sprinkling our yards and gardens and for drinking water and for domestic purposes; say they don't want to use this water, what would you do with it: what would von do with the water? It says you shan't sell it to anybody except a citizen or person do-ing business in the city; you could not dispose of it like another man who owns dispose of it like another man who owns his property. Now, what is it you own? Water in the river was never owned by anybody. You can't get a title to water as it flows in the river. It is like the wild animal. It has to be capanybody. You can't get a title to to the cost of the city water. Millions are required to pave and construct needed improvements; do not destroy these opportunities by attempting a burden greater than the people can bear; do not increase our taxes until people shall be driven from the city, but rather invite capital from abroad to come and help us. I thank you for this invitation and for your attention.

JUDGE ANDERSON'S REMARKS.

The Question as to Whether the City has the Power to Lease.

Mr. Allen was immediately followed by Judge Anderson, who stated that he would be as brief as possible and address himself to the question as to whether the city has the power to lease, as he understands that question, meaning are the city's powers restricted by section 191 of the charter, which says: "That said city shall not convey, lease or otherwise dispose of its rights in said waters, or any part thereof, for grant or lease to any corporation or person any right or privilege to use, manage or control the said waters, or any part thereof, for any purpose, public or private, otherwise than by license revocable by said city at pleasure, upon notice not to exceed six months; provided that this provision shall not be construed to prevent the ordinary sale and distribution of the said waters to the inhabitants of the city, or persons doing business therein, for irrigating and desartia uses and for manufastors.

and no more. And that is the property that they say here in this section that you can't sell, you can't lease, you can't convey, you can't dispose of to anybody excepting citizens inside the city or somebody doing business in the city. Then my opinion is, and I have had it for eighteen months, that that section has no validity where that that section has no validity whatever, that it consists simply of idle words, and that in any adjustment or any disposition of the city's rights or the city's interest in the water you are not hampered one particle by that section.

There is the bond question. In addition to what Mr. Allen said I will advance one idea. I am inclined to believe that this act of the Legislature here which provides for the issuance of the bonds as serial, making the one-twentieth payable in the shape of a bond, you understand, I believe it comes within the nursiew of the constitution. you understand, I believe it comes with-in the purview of the constitution. I think this: I think when the constitu-tion says that a sinking fund shall be provided for the payment of one-twen-tieth of it that it does not mean the agtieth of it that it does not mean the aggregate amount voted, but it means one-twentieth of every bond. Suppose now that you would issue 100 bonds under this authority that is voted, should issue 100 bonds, each one of those bonds becomes a debt upon the city, and, as I understand that constitution, it means that there shall be a sinking fund for that there shall be a sinking fund for each one of those bonds, one-twentieth of each one of those bonds for every year and that you don't satisfy the requirements of the constitution the requirements of the constitution by putting it in serial form and making one of the bonds, that is, for one-twentieth, and making that payable. It will always hang over this bonded in-debtedness as to whether the Legisla-ture had authority by the act of 1889 to authorize you to make an indebted-ness of $1,000,000 and divide it in a series of bonds and make one-twentieth series of bonds and make one-twentieth series of bonus and make one-twentieth of it payable one year and another twentieth of it payable another year, whether that comes within the purview of the sinking fund to pay that debt. I think the debt consists of each one of the bonds you issue, and there should be a sinking fund to pay each one of the bonds you issue; anyway, it is suscepti-ble of that construction and it will aiways act as a cloud over the issuance and the sale of the bonds. I think the constitutional enactment itself in giving this privilege of raising this money for public improvements hampers and is of such an impracticable character that the privilege almost amounts to nothing. I think the legislative enactment is still worse—that is the one em powering you to do it and requiring you to do it by serials—from the fact that in the under-taking of any large and important pub-lic improvement, as I understand it, you It improvement, as I understand it, you haven't the money, and you have to then provide for the issuance of the bonds. They will have to be of the same date because they have to be paid annually; the result is that in almost any kind of a large enterprise a large number of the bonds. will mature and you will have to pay interest on them number of the bonds will mature and you will have to pay interest on them and they will mature and have to be paid before you get the benefit of the work at all. So that I really think the legislative bounty, as you may call it, is anything else than a benefit to a community of this size when you are talking about a large public improvement that would require millions of dollars.

As I stated to you just now, there is no mode of acquiring title to water as it flows through the river except that it is known in this State as appropriation; that is what I mean by the words "capture it;" you can capture it, and

"capture it;" you can capture it, and whenever you turn it into your ditch then it becomes your water, unless somebody interferes who has a right somebody interferes who has a right which is riparian or prevents you taking the water. But if you do it for five years it becomes absolutely your water. Then the proposition, as I make it, is that the only water this city owns in the Los Angeles River, outside of this riparian interest, and I explained that to you just now as a riparian owner living on the bank, you have all got the right to have that water flow down by you; that is one right, and not very imright to have that water flow down by you; that is one right, and not very important, but the only water you use in the sense of ownership in the water yourself is that which you have diverted heretofore by your pipes and your ditches—that you have captured and taken under your control, that is all you own.

don't think that a single decision can be found either in England or in the United States where the courts have pretended to control what is known as preceded to control what is known as percolating water; in other words, water passing under the surface, not in the stream, but passing under the surface and which is percolating from the surface. The courts have always said that the passage of waters of that kind under the surface is so mysterious in its under the surface is so mysterious in its character, so utterly insusceptible of definite marks as to what is being done under there or where it comes from, that they wouldn't pretend to take jurisdiction or determine the rights to it. To illustrate: I may have dug me a well on my land here, and may have been using it for years and years, the well being filled with percolating water. My neighbor just on the other side of me comes along after I use my water for years and digs a well on the other side and it may dry up my well; the courts say you have been injured but your injury is without a remedy; we won't un-dertake to determine who has a right

Now, as to the right of the riparian owner, or others in the water, that is the right to control the water within the line that flows on the surface and that which flows under the ground toward the sea, under the surface. whether they have the right to it and whether they can insist that it shall continue to do so as it has done for all time to come. Supposing now, here is water coming from the mountains on this side and the mountains on that side, and it is coming directly through side, and it is coming directly through the surface and beneath the surface of the earth, gradually spreading down all along and finds this river as it goes down, the question is, Can those who control the river, those who are entitled to have that water run down in its banks there, prevent other people from diverting this water coming from the mountains and percolating through from entering into the river? I say they cannot; that the ownership of the water in that river between the banks there exists after it gets there with the right to control. I use the word ownership, but I mean the rights in the water. I said to you just now that no man can own the water as it flows, but the rights in the water as it flows, but the rights in the water between the banks only exists after it gets between the banks.

The roint I want to enforce is this. the surface and beneath the surface of the water between the banks only exists after it gets between the banks. The point I want to enforce is this. This riparian right only exists to the water after it gets into the banks and confined to the banks. Eighteen months ago when I was one of the Citizens' Committee, the conclusion I came to, after looking into it, was that any water that was captured, that is any water developed outside of the river banks, although it was water that would ulti mately have gone in, was owned by the owner of the land where it was devel-

party could acquire, and by which a party could give a party, the right to all the waters in the river; I know of no law of Spain to that effect, excepting if they give-him-the land they have to water right to the water of the spain to the rights to the water on water got water rights to the of Spain, or land, but I know of no law of Spain, or anywhere else, by which they can give a right to any man to all the water flowing in the river. And that is the opinion as expressed in that section— that you are entitled to all the water that you are entitled to all the water flowing from the head of the river to the southern boundary of the city. I am satisfied that you, gentlemen, in treating with this question, can only safely consider that the city owns such water as it has already diverted in its pipes, or the pipes of somebody else for them, or in its ditches. What you have diverted in ditches, yourself, or persons under you, that they have taken as your agents. I consider every bit of water that has been diverted by canals or ditches, or by either one of the companies, as your water; that is, where they have diverted it from the river surface water. One of the first things that have diverted it from the river surface water. One of the first things that struck me was this: That this city made a bargain with this water company, or rather their ancesters, and in order to avoid complications, and keep complications from arising under that company, they organized a new company to develop this Crystal Springs water, and organized a new corporation, where they have got water that has not reached the river, and it is already their property and not yours.

As I said eighteen months ago, I think the practical mode of handling the water of this city is to invite capital to come and build the works, and, if necessary, buy out any opposing interests, and at such time as may be agreed upon—I don't care what the time is; it strikes me the longer the better, the idea being that the capitalists will be actified with a good war cent on their be satisfied with a good per cent on their investment elieve the best mode of doing it is to get somebody else into the contract and go and build the works and pay for any water you have. I don't know what amount you would have to pay for it; those are questions I can't deal with. I those are questions I can't deal with. I don't know how much that water is worth up there or how much they really own, but it is a matter of time and adjustment. I don't think you can agree upon anything, as I stated in my last article, that you can't go to work upon any plan, until you get those questions settled; they will lead to so much litigation and trople. You can do it litigation and trouble. You can do it by condemnation and appropriation or else do it by adjustment and settle-

You will find three very interesting You will find three very interesting decisions rendered by the Supreme Court of the United States, one about water from Louisiana, and one about gas from Connecticut, where they say that contracts made by authority giving an absolute and exclusive right to control the water, and where there has been an alteration of the continuous afterwards that the control the control that control the contro stitution afterwards, that that constitution could not vary the rights or pre-vent the existence of that contract; but they say there that you can fulfill but they say there that you can fulfill the obligation that you entered into with the parties by taking the water by condemnation under the eminent domain of the State. The city here has that power, no doubt about that, and regardless of this contract. You would have to pay the contract. The contract you would have to pay would be this: Whatever property they have put here in the streets: whatever the value of in the streets; whatever the value of that franchise is for the next few years be also this property.

Tufts. We can enter upon and ould be also Mr. Tufts.

Mr. Tures. We can enter upon and take possession?

Mr. Anderson. Yes, sir; the right of eminent domain, I think, exists at all times; no doubt about that.

Mr. Bonsall. Suppose we did acquire this property under condemnation or otherwise, we would have to provide money for it.

Mr. Anderson. The money has to be

Mr. Anderson. The money has to be provided for it, and there is where the oractical question came into my mind years ago—that the mode of doing it was to let somebody else come here and pay for it, because I think capital for a reasonable remuneration in the shape of interest would invest the money in the bonds and would be willing to turn the works over to you and let you go along and collect the money and pay running expenses and even provide a sinking fund for the bonds, principal and interest—that you could do that cheaper than any other way. That is the best and most practical way of handling it, and I think it would be less burdensome upon out citizens and in burdensome upon our citizens and in every way work easier and freer from all complications, because I really be-lieve, as I stated to you just now. I do believe there is a constitutional difficulty provided by the Legislature) in serials which would result in putting a tax upon the people here that they will grumble at and that ought not to be put grumble at and that ought not to be put upon them when it can be done easier. For instance, it requires $4,000,000 and 6' per cent. upon $4,000,000 is comparatively small.

After some discussion as to the de tails of a new company, the amount of capital required, the rate of interest, etc., the discussion concluded as follows:

Mr. Bonsall. This new company would contemplate the idea of extensively irrigating and we could get them to take our irrigating ditches and that would be another source of money-making for the city.

Mr. Anderson. It could and would be.
You would have plenty of water that you could furnish. Supposing you bought all these parties out and held those interests up beyond and got all the water you wanted for the city of a fine, pure character and still had the river water on your hands. If that law is in force you actually could not use it; you can't lease it or give it away and you would lose a valuable right, but I say that the Government of the United say that the Government of the United States and the government of California and nobody else can deprive you of any property, which is yours to own and lispose of as you please.

Mr. Bonsall. And you would count the charter as a nullity in that respect? Mr. Anderson. The charter is a nullity on that, beyond all question.

Mr. Bonsall. I would like to see a system costs the city a large amount of money.

I would like to see new company under that system, and would like to see it take the zanja sys-tem and allow the city to make some money out of it. At present the zanja system costs the city a large amount of money.

Mr. Anderson. In the article I wrote my idea was this: For the city to get the control of all the water that was in the river and that could be developed from seepage water, and have it undercontrol so they would have enough for the city, ion't you see, and then let none of it be wasted; sell it all out and deliver it through the country so that you would be developing this immediate country yeat to you, and use it for power.

Mr. Bonsall. And get an immense revenue?

Mr. Anderson. Certainly. I believe you can make an arrangement where you can get the money by another company and you can so develop this whole water right up here that in a little while you will make it more than self-paying and maybe the city can get its water for almost nothing. The water from the river is not fit for city purposes, but that water, when it comes to be distributed all down through this country, increasing the country that is tributary, increases your city and you will derive such a revenue from it that you will pretty near get your water free.

OUR FAMOUS CAPTAINS.

The Great Books for Veteran Soldiers and American Citizens. There are thousands of comrades who fought during the war under the leadership of the four great generals, Grant, Sherman, Sheridan and McClellan, who would have purchased the memoirs of these historic captains when published had the price been placed at a reasonable figure. There is an opportunity now however, as the Cosmopolitan Magazine of New York has purchased 600. 000 volumes of the memoirs in the original subscription editions, bound in green and gold cloth, and is almost giving them away in connection with yearly subscriptions to that popular magazine. They contain the personal history of the great commanders, and form an indispensable part of the his-tory of the country. No library, private or public, large or little, is complete without them.

By special contract THE TIMES enabled to give its readers the benefit of this great offer, which is fully explained in our advertising pages. Never has a book had such a sale in the United States as "Gen. Grant's Memoirs." Over 650,000 copies have already gone into the homes of the rich, but the subscription price of $7 has placed it beyond the reach of people in moderate circumstances. If 650,000 people have been willing to pay $7 for "Grant's Memoirs," there must be some thousands more in California who will want them at the lov fornia who will want them at the low price for which they are now offered by us. The edition which we are offering is the publishers' original edition, best paper, green and gold cloth binding, hitherto sold by subscription for $7. Our offer is an extraordinary one, when taken, as it is, in connection with the Cosmopolitan and The Times, either daily or weekly. either daily or weekly.

[Ontario Observer.] The recent publication by the San Ja-cinto Register of a statement alleging that the hero and heroine of Mrs. Jack son's romance were deserving of any-thing but the idealization indulged regarding them has called out from the Great Southwest the following counter statement. It says:

The identification of the heroine of "The identification of the neroine of Helen Hunt Jackson's 'Ramona' is not a disputed question so far as Rev. Fr. Ubach of San Diego is concerned. He it was that gave that good friend of the Indians the skeleton of facts for her romance, and which he says she did not exaggerate in embellishing. There is a dark page to the story that was omitted, because there were then members of Ramona's family living in this country. Her half-sister is still here somewhere in the mountains near Ban ning, Fr. Ubach thinks; and when last he heard of Ramona she was residing in Sonora, Mexico, with her children. This statement was made to him while on a visit to that State, and by three leading business men who knew of her history and family connections. It is very annoying, Fr. Ubach says, to be continually hearing of the aged squaw, living near San Jacinto, who claims to be the Ramona of that tale; for, while her name may be the same, she is in no way connected with the story. Because of prudential reasons, the family name of Ramona has not yet been made public, and for the reason that secrecy had been imposed upon Fr. Ubach, who is the Fr. Gaspara of the volume. He not only knew the whole of the heroine's history, but knew and admired the identical Alessandro of the romance. on a visit to that State, and by three identical Alessandro of the romance. There are still a few of this type, mus-cular of build and noble of character, to be found in the country about Ysabel. Fr. Ubach says Alessandro was a de-scendant of one of the most intelligent mission Indians, while Ramona was a child of an Indian mother and a father who traced his descent through the grandees of Spain. Many visitors to San Diego have carried away in their Ramona volumes the autograph of Fr. Ubach, with its quaint rubric, to show that there is not only a basis of fact to the story, but that one of its characters correct information about the book's inception."

The more useful Euroof the West. of the West. The more useful European species have, of course, been primarily introduced for agricultural or domestic purposes. Of these the most valuable and most interesting historically is the medicago sativa lin., the alfalfa of the Spaniard, and lucern of the French. This has been so long and so commonly cultivated in Spain that it seems but natural that they should have introduced it here in the early days of the conquest. Though cultivated before this time by the Greeks and Romans, it bris not indigenous to Italy, having been brought from Media at the time of the Persian war, 470 years before the Christian era. The very name (alfalfa) indicates its origin, being the Arabic derivation of the Persian name. The derivation of the Persian name. The history of alfalfa is but the history of many of our now supposed indigenous plants; they have, by accident or otherwise, followed the path of civiliation westward till it becomes difficult to discriminate between what is indigenous or otherwise.

Pruning Peach Trees.

[Our Country Home.]
After the leaves have fallen in the fall, or early in the spring, take your pruning knife and cut back at least twothirds the new growth, using the eye and judgment in so doing to keep the tree in good shape. More cutting will be required on some parts of the tree the required on some parts of the tree than on others to give it the proper shape. I like a round, bunchy tree, but one can grow the peach tree into almost any shape they wish by careful pruning. The same operation to be repeated the next year, and by the end of the season, if you have pushed your trees along, you will find you have got a pretty good sized tree, and one that is ready to yield some fruit the following season; but a crop should hardly be expected until another year. From this time on the knife has got to be used vigorously and with determination or your tree will get away from you, and get to be one of those scraggy bean-pole fellows. This you don't want. You ought to keep your tree down and within bounds, making it form its new wood low down and where you wish it.

HEAVENLY VISIONS.

RECENT OBSERVATIONS AT THE LICK OBSERVATORY.

By Edward S. Holden, Director of the Lie Observatory.

[CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES—COPYRIGHT 1892, BY S. S. N'CLURE.]

I have been asked to give some ount of recent investigation at the Lick Observatory. The most generally interesting results recently reached are those relating to the motions of the first and third satellites of Jupiter de-duced by Profs. Schaeberle and Campbell from their observations of the past summer with the great telescope.

Their observations show that th first satellite of Jupiter (the satellite nearest to the planet) is of an ellipsoi dal shape with its longer axis constantly directed to the planet's center, while all the other satellites are essentially spherical in form. The ellipsoidal shape may very likely be caused by the immense tidal forces exerted by Jupiter on its nearest attendant. The fact that the longest axis is always directed toward the planet's center shows that this satellite revolves once about the primary in the same time that it re-volves once on its own axis. The same fact has also been shown by the same observers for the third satellite, though in a very different way. A long series of drawings of the faint markings which are sometimes visible on the very min-ute disc of the satellite has been secured and a comparison of these draw-ings has shown that the third satellite also constantly turns one face toward Jupiter, just as our own moon constantly turns one face toward the earth. Such a condition of thipgs in the system of Jupiter has long been suspected (on more or less sufficient testimony,) but it is now established for the first it is now established for the first time. Markings have been seen on the other satellites also, but not sufficiently well to prove that they are subject to the same law. The planet is coming into a more favorable situation year by year, and it is very likely that it may be possible to establish this law by actual observation for each one of the satellites separately. These results are of material importance in the theory of such bodies, and they throw much light on the question of the age of the system of Jupiter. This is not the place to do more than announce the results of observation. Readers who care for more detail are referred to papers by Profs. Schaeberle and Campbell in the publications of the Astronomical Society of the Pacific (No. 19.)

THE CLUSTER IN HERCULES. During 1890 and 1891 this globular cluster of stars has been photographed several times with the great telescope several times with the great telescope:
with exposures from 17 to 170 minutes.
It is impossible to give a representation of the cluster in this place and a verbal description must suffice. The cluster has long been known as one of the most beautiful of the globular groups of stars. It is composed of a mass of very minute stars closely packed together with outlying wisps of stars on its borders. It is a beautiful object even in small telescopes, but it requires a large with outlying wisps of stars on its borders. It is a beautiful object even in small telescopes, but it requires a large telescope to show its manifold details. One of its very remarkable features is a system of three dark channels which meet at a point and form angles of about 120° with each other.

about 120° with each other.

These channels or dark lanes were discovered by Lord Rosse and make this cluster especially noteworthy. Their regularity and the equal angles which they make with each other point to some law in virtue of which they exist, and interest is at once excited to discover some analogue or explanation. cover some analogue or explanation.

There is nothing exactly similar to this in the solar system. The nearest analogue is to be found in the dark channels which separate the bright rings of Saturn or in the empty spaces in the group of minor planets (asteroids.) One of the nebulæ (the trifid nebulæ, G. One of the neodise (the trink neodise, 6, 4855) presents even a closer analogy, for it consists of bright lobes separated from each other by dark channels which at once suggest the channels of the cluster in Hercules and which are arranged in a similar manner.

A careful examination of our negatives showed that not only were the dark lanes of Lord Rosse clearly exhib tied, but that many other sets of dark channels were to be seen. In order to describe these exactly we may define a dark channel to be a space of considerable length, empty of stars, and bordered at least on one side by a row of

Now when our negatives were studied they showed not only the three inter-secting channels of Lord Rosse, but many sets of such channels. If we call the intersection of such a set of chan-nels a center of force, and mark its position by a dot, then I found no less than thirteen such dots or centers on the chart, one of which corresponded with the intersection of the dark chan-nels of Lord Rosse, and at each of these dots at least two channels met at angles of about 120° and nearly always three channels met at this same angle

CHARACTERISTIC FORMS. That is to say that the characteristic form of this cluster was repeated and nsisted upon over and over again until it was evident that a definite law was acting to produce this form, and that this law might be truly taken as reprethis law might be truly taken as representative for this cluster. In some way there are dark lanes produced and maintained among the thousands of bright stars in this globular mass, and there are many such channels. How can we conceive of such a system? It is clear that either the dark lanes are absolutely empty of matter, or that, at least, they are empty of luminous matter. It is possible that along these lanes perpetual collisions may have taken place so that the bodies which once may have existed there as luminous matter have been burned out and become non-luminous, but it is far more probable that these channels are actually empty. What force can be conally empty. What force can be con-ceived of that will accomplish such re-sults? It almost seems as if gravitation was not adequate to produce such configurations.

THEORY OF THE MOTIONS WITHIN A GLOBU LAR CLUSTER. In a globular system or cluster of stars we may suppose the mass and the dimensions of each one of the individual stars to be indefinitely small with reference to the mass and to the dimensions of the whole system, and we may also suppose the cluster to be so far removed from other systems of stars that no influence is exerted by the latter upon the motions of the components of the former. In short we may, without material error, suppose our cluster to be alone in space and to be composed of a very great number of equal masses uniformly distributed throughout a spherical volume. The motions of the constituent particles of such a system under the influence of gravitation have been mathematically investigated and they can be described as follows:

The orbit of each one of the individual stars must be an ellipse whose center coincides with the center of gravity of the cluster. These elliptic mensions of each one of the individua plane and they may be of all conceivable shapes—from ellipses so nearly round as to be almost (or quite) circular, to others so very much extended as to be nearly (or quite) rectilinear.

The orbits of the various stars may then be anything, from circles, through ellipses, to straight lines, and they may lie in any plane passing through the lie in any plane passing through the center of the cluster. In the general case the absolute dimensions of the dif-ferent orbits in miles will be different. The center of every orbit must coincide with the center of the cluster itself. Each individual star revolves once round its orbit in a period which must be the same for all the stars, no matter what the shape of each orbit may be. If it is a circle, the star revolves uniformly about the circumference so many degrees each day. If the orbit is a right line, the velocity of the star is a maximum at the center and zero at the extremity of the line (where the star reverses its outward swing in order to return one more to the central). If the orbit is an ellipse, more or less elongated, the velocity is more or less accelerated. But in each case the rev-olution is the same for each separate star of the cluster, and the form of each the country of the co end of one such period each and every star will have returned to precisely the same situation which it occupied at the beginning of the period, and that this periodic readjustment will perpetually repeat itself.

The whole cluster as a mass may also have a rotation about some axis and a further motion of translation in space either in a right line or in some curve. Such a system with such motions is not to be observed in the earth, but it is not difficult to make a mental picture of not difficult to make a mental picture of it, and such a picture is a true representation of what is actually taking place in the globular clusters of the Milky Way, if they are acted upon only by attractions varying inversely as the square of the distance. If for attractions we substitute repulsions the elliptic orbits will become hyperbolas. tic orbits will become hyperbolas. CONCLUSION.

It does not seem possible to explain the wonderful characteristic forms within this cluster by our present knowledge of the results of gravitation. I have found typical forms of analagous nature within the planetary and the spiral nebulæ, and in all these cases it seems as if the phenomena presented seems as if the phenomena presented by observation were too complex to be explained as the effects of gravitation pure and simple. There is no a priori pure and simple. There is no a priori-reason why other laws of force may not govern other systems than our own, or why such systems may not be involved in a resisting medium. At the same time it would be presumptious to specu-late on our ignorance. The true pro-cedure is to collect the facts as well as we may and to interpret them as far as we may and to interpret them as far as we safely can. Whatever may be the conclusions to which we may finally be led, it seems plain that the discovery of such characteristic forms within this cluster (and within certain nebulæ) is of importance in directing our atten-tion to phenomena which must some-how be explained, and in widening our notions as to the variety which exists in the sidereal universe

MAKING A THERMOMETER.

IT IS DONE QUICKLY BY NINE-TEEN PEOPLE.

By William Drysdale

[CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.] The making of a thermometer may be either a delicate scientific operation or one of the simplest tasks of the skilled mechanic, according to the sort of ther-mometer made. With the extremely mometer made. With the extremely sensitive and, minutely accurate instru-ments designed for scientific uses great care is taken, and they are kept in stock for months, sometimes years, to be com-pared and recompared with instruments that are known to be trustworthy.

But so much time cannot be spent over the comparatively cheap thermometers in common use, and these are made rapidly, though always carefully. The method of manufacture has been so systematized within a few years that the very cheapest thermometer should not vary more than a fraction of a degree from the correct point.

Whether the thermometer is to be charged with mercury or alcohol; whether it is to be mounted in a frame of wood, pressed tin or brass, the pro-cess is substantially the same. Mercess is substantially the same. Mer-cury is generally used for scientific in-struments, but most makers prefer alco-hol, because it is much cheaper. The alcohol is colored red with an aniline dye, which does not fade.

The thermometer-maker buys his glass tubes in long strips from the glass factories. The glass-blower on the premises cuts these tubes to the proper lengths, and with his gas-jet and blow-pipe makes the bulb on the lower end. The bulbs are then filled with colored alcohol, and the tubes stand for twenty-on the following day another work-man holds each bulb in turn over a gas jet until the colored fluid, by its expansion, entirely fills the tube. It then goes back into the hands of the glass-blower. He closes the upper end, and turns the tip backward to make the little glass book which will help keep the ook which will help keep the turns the tip backward to make the fittle glass hook which will help keep the tube in place in the frame.

The tubes now rest until some hundreds of them, perhaps thousands, are ready. Then the process of gauging begins. There are no marks whatever upon the tube, nothing to show the temperature of the atmosphere, and the first guide-mark to be made is the freezing point, 82° Fahrenheit. This is found by plunging the bulbs into melting snow. No other thermometer is needed here for a guide, for melting snow gives invariably the exact freezing point. This is an unfailing test for any thermometer whose accuarcy may be suspected. But melting snow is not always to be had, and a little machine resembling a sausage grinder is brought resembling a sausage grinder is brought into use. This machine shaves a block of ice into fleecy, snowlike particles, which answer the purpose as well as when the bulbs have been long enough in the melting snow a workman takes them one by one from their icy bath, seizing each one so that his thumb nail marks the exact spot to which the fluid has fallen. Here he makes a scarcly perceptible mark upon the glass with a fine file, and goes on to the next. The tubes, with the freezing point marked upon each, now go into the hands of another workman, who plunges them, bulb down, into a vessel filled with water kept constantly at 64°. A standard thermometer attached to the inside of this vessel shows that the tem-

The tube bearing the corresponding number is next attached to the frame and the thermometer is ready for the market without further testing. Some makers use only two guide marks, but the best makers use three.

In the process of manufacture the ordinary thermometer goes through the hands of nineteen workmen. half of whom are often girls and women.

Some of the larger concerns in and near New York produce several hundred thousand instruments annually, and on every one of them the purchaser may see, if he looks closely, the tiny file scratch on the glass at $2°, 64° and 96° marks—or somewhere near them, as different makers use different points.

Pigeons on the Farm. [American Cultivator.] A pigeon loft may be an adjunct to to the poultry business, and a considerable profit may be obtained from it. There is generally a good demand for old pigeons and for squabs, but the latter are always most profitable if quick returns are expected. Young squabs sell for a good price in the winter, when they are used in the cities very when they are used in the cities very often for partridges and quall, and none but the epicure can detect the difference. The cost of raising them is very little, for they eat very little grain or other food before they are old enough for the market. The parent birds feed them, and practically they "pick up" their living in the fields and woods, demanding only a very little extra food manding only a very little extra food from the granary. The squabs are thus practically raised at no expense at all, and they frequently bring as high as 50 cents a pair.

There is a prejudice against keeping pigeons on the farm among many, but this is generally founded upon some little failure in the work, which does not this is generally founded upon some littie failure in the work, which does not

Watering a Horse. [Southern Cultivator.]

The tubes, with the freezing point marked upon each, now go into the hands of another workman, who plunges them, bulb down, into a vessel filled with water kept constantly at 64°. A standard thermometer attached to the inside of this vessel shows that the temperature of the water is correct. Another tiny file-scratch is put at 64°. Then a third workman plunges the bulbs into another vessel of water, kept constantly at 96°. This ismarked like the others, and the tube is now supplied with these guide marks, each 32° from the next. A small tab is then attached to each tube, on which its number is written—for owing to unavoidable variations in the bore of the tube each one varies slightly from the others. With its individuality thus established the tube now goes into the hands of a marker, who fits its bulb and hook into the frame it is to occupy, and makes slight scratches on the frame, corresponding to 82°, 64° and 96° marks on the tube. The frame is given a number corresponding with the number of the tube, and the tube is laid away in a rack amid thousands of others.

The frame, whether it be wood, tin or brass, goes to the gauging-room, where it is laid upon a steeply-sloping table, exactly in the position marked for a thermometer of that size. The $2°, 64° and $6° marks must correspond with the marks upon the table. If they do not the error in marking is instantly detected and the frame is sent back for correction.

BUREAU OF IRRIGATION.

The Report to be Published in a Short Time.

It Will Contain Much of Interest to California.

The Work Already Done in Pacific Coast States.

Irrigation Areas and Artesian Wells in All the Arid Lands of the United History.

The report of the Bureau of Irriga-tion is now in the hands of the Public Printer, says a Washington special dispatch of recent date, and may be issued in a short time, though what length of time will elapse is problematical. So far the contents of this report have been kept strictly secret, or as nearly so as possible. The points discussed are the progress of irrigation, the physical data concerning irrigation and the scientific study of the results of the cultivation of the soil thereby,

The report will have much of interest for California. It gives the irrigation areas and the artesian wells west of the 97th meridian, which takes in all the arid lands of the United States. The total figures for the Pacific Coast States and Territories are as follows:

In 1890 California had nnder ditch 4,044,000 acres, in 1891 4,500,000 acres; in 1890 it had 8,444,000 acres under cultivation and last year 3,550,-000 acres. The number of artesian wells is estimated at 8500. Arizona had 648,450 acres under ditch in 1890 and 680,000 in 1891. Under cultivation it had 310,100 acres in 1890 and 815,000 acres last year. It had 45 artesian wells. Nevada had 150,-000 acres under ditch in 1891, half of which was under cultivation, with 76 artesian wells. No progress has been made during the year. Oregon east of made during the year. Oregon east of the Cascades had 100,000 acres under dich in 1890 and gained 25,000 during the year, under cultivation it had 45,000 acres in 1890 and no material gain was made during the year. It has 6 artesian wells. Washington east of the Cascades had 150,000 acres under ditch in 1890 and 175,000 in 1891 to had 60,000 acres under culti-1891. It had 60,000 acres under cultivation in 1890 and 75,000 acres in 1891. It has 10 artesian wells. Utah had 700,000 acres under ditch in 1890 and 785,000 in 1891. Inacres under cultivation it jumped from 413,000 acres in 1890 to 423,000 in 1891. It has 2800 artesian wells, all of shallow has 2800 artesian wells, all of shallow depth, supplied from drift deposits.

The importance of this report, which will make an immense book, full of colored maps, showing the natural waterways and watersheds, the underflow of which is of so much importance to California, artesian wells and topography, is accentuated by the fact that the Bureau of Irrigation ceased to exist versus of Irrigation ceased to exist versus of the statement of the sta is accentuated by the fact that the Bureau of Irrigation ceased to exist yesterday, and Col. R. J. Hinton, who has been at its head, has been worsted after a long fight with Maj. Powell of the Geological Survey. Whether it will be reopened remains entirely with Congress. The bureau has been closed because the Comptroller of the Currency says there is no more money for it.

Senator Stewart fought last year to get a liberal appropriation for the bureau in the Sundry Civil Bill, but failed. Afterward he succeeded in getting one put in the Agricultural Appropriation Bill, where Col. Hinton says it rightfully belonged. In this bill there is no doubt that an effort was made to make the Bureau of Irrigation a permanent institution, as it had before been considered only a temporary affair, and institution, as it had before been considered only a temporary affair, and what little money it had received was secured only after a hard fight with Maj. Powell, who argued that the work belonged to his bureau.

Senator Stewart's section in the Appropriation Act, which in a manner caused the collapse of the bureau, is as caused the collapse of the bureau, is as follows, and it was passed during the night sessions of the last two days of the last Congress: "The time for final completion of the report of the extent and availability for irrigation of the underflow and artesian waters and the collection and publication of information as to the best method of cultivating the soil by irrigation, limited tivating the soil by irrigation, limited to the 1st of July, 1891, by the act of September 20, 1890, is hereby extended to the first day of January, 1892; and the sum of $10,000 is hereby appropriated to enable the Sec retary of Agriculture to collect and pub-lish information as to the best method of cultivating the soil by irrigation."

Of the $10,000 appropriated $5400 remains unexpended; enough to run the bureau until the end of the fiscal year, the publication of the report having been otherwise provided for. When Mr. Cannon of Illinois had the bill in conference in the last hours of the session he objected to the sentence making an appropriation, because he making an appropriation, because he said it made the bureau a permanent in-stitution. The Comptroller takes the opposite view, saying that the semicolon after 1892 and the fact that, in his after 1892 and the fact that, in his judgment, the word "said" should have been inserted between the words "publish" and "information," placed the last part of the paragraph under the direct control of the first part. Therefore the appropriation expired January 1, 1892, when the report was ready, and the unexpended balance is not available.

Had a period been inserted after 1892 instead of a semicolon Col. Hinton would still be doing business. The latter lays the blame for his closing up on the Geological Survey, and bluntly says that the cause of the trouble between his burean and Maj. Powell's is not so much due to rivaly over the possession his bureau and Maj. Powell's is not so much due to rivalry over the possession of irrigation projects as to a deep-laid scheme to rob the people of the United States of their rights and the United States of its lands through the medium of a proposition to cede the arid lands to different land companies. This is the same charge made by Senator Power, who gave the names of some of his colleagues in the Senate as among the same charge made by Senator Power, who gave the names of some of his colleagues in the Senate as among the onlpable ones, a charge, by the way, that has not yet been retracted. Col. Hinton declares that if the plan is carried out it will place in the hands of a few men water rights covering 620,000,000 acres of arid land and that thousands of property owners will be completely at their mercy.

Without charging corruption or claiming the existence of conspiracy he will illustrate this in his report with figures showing that 65 per cent. of all the waters of the Western affluents of the Mississippi basin rise in three States—Montana, Wyoming and Colorado; 95 per cent. of all the waters of the Pacificalope, which govern the proprietary interests of public land, as the report will allege, have their rise in the same States. In a physical sense three States control the hydrology of twenty-three or twenty-four States east and west of the continental divide. A few men can thus control sverything. Maj. Powell favors a plan to cede the arid lands to the States and Territories, and besides claims that he is the right man to solve the irrigation problem. Col. Hinton opposes this plan.

The fight has developed into a personal one and both men have applied terms to each other that border closely on the word thief. Maj. Powell has won the first round; Hinton is sponging off for the second. If he is whipped again he will retire to his new orange orchard in San Diego county, near Perris, where he can study irrigation undisturbed and put it to practical use. The fight is of paramount interest to horticulturists, agriculturists and cattlemen.

A QUEER CASE.

A Man's Orange Grove Cut Down and the Wood Sold. A few weeks ago an old Chicago locomotive engineer named Goger pur-chased five lots on Central avenue and reached this city Thursday last with his family and intended to go to work and build a home at once. On visiting his lots he found everything as represented to him including about seventy-five orange trees. The next morning he went out to select a site for his house, when he was thunderstruck to find that the orange trees had been sawed off close to the ground and the wood removed.

He was considerably put out, of course, and began an investigation at once, and learned that a man named Marks had leased seven lots adjoining his five lots, but they are divided from his by a hedge fence. Marks leased the seven lots with the privilege of cutting the orange trees and selling the wood. He cutthe trees on his leased lots and also the seventy-five trees on Mr.

He cut the trees on his leased lots and also the seventy-five trees on Mr. Goger's lots and sold them to a wood painter for $60.

Mr. Goger was confident that Marks knew that he was cutting trees that did not belong to him, so he called at the District Attorney's office and wanted Marks arrested, but they told him that he could do nothing, and the matter will probably never be righted. Mr. Goger would not have taken $500 for his trees.

SHE HAD A NARROW ESCAPE.

A Woman Knocked Down By a Cable Car Yesterday. At 10:50 o'clock yesterday morning there came near being a horrible acci dent at the corner of Temple and Spring streets. A Mrs. McMillen, who resides at No. 814 Pasadena avenue, started to cross Spring street and did not notice that a cable car was coming around the curve until it was too late. She was knocked down with great violence, and at first it was believed that the wheels passed over her body, but when she was picked up she stood on her feet, and it could be seen that no bones were broken. The wheels passed over a portion of her clothing and just grazed her body, but she was not injured, with the exception of a few bruises, caused by her heavy fall when the dummy struck her.

She had a narrow escape, and the people who witnessed the accident could not realize for some time that she had escaped a terrible death. olence, and at first it was believed that

NO CONSPIRACY.

Demurrer in the Peralta Park Hotel Suit The suit of Marie B. Strelinger, wife of Curtis the actor, against James P. McCarthy, M. W. Connor and H. E. Chesebro for $100,000, came up for demurrer today in Judge Finn's court, says the San Francisno Call of the 19th. It seems that shortly after Curtis's ar rest for the murder of Grant his wife decided to sell Peralta Park Hotel and decided to sell Peralta Park Hotel and surrounding lots for $175,000. McCarthy said he could find purchasers, and brought around Connor and Chesebro, who entered into a written contract to buy the property. They failed to live up to their contract, and Mrs. Strelinger (Curtis) sued and alleged a conspiracy. Judge Smith this morning decided that there was no conspiracy on the part of the defendants, and that there was simply a breach of contract. He gave the defendants another week in which to present another demurrer.

Deer Hunting in Duluth's Suburbs

(Pittsburgh Dispatch.)
Lovers of good hunting will be interested in the following extracts from a ested in the following extracts from a private letter just received in this city from Duluth, Minn. The writer enjoys the rather novel experience, judged from an Eastern standpoint, of riding out to the street-car terminus, and then getting off and shooting deer in the adjacent woods, starting at 8 a.m., and getting deer by 17, and returning with them to town in the afternoon. He varies the programme by hunting

"In regard to my hunting, of which you kindly inquire." he says in his letter, "the deer season opened November 1. I went out on a Superior street car to the end of the line, leaving home about 8 o'clock. I hunted along the ridge towards Lester Park, and killed a nice buck a mile back of London before 11 a.m. There was a light snow on the ground, but I saw the deer before I discovered his tracks. I had my Winchester along, but shot and missed him twice, when he ran away. I followed his trail, scolding myself for want of skill, but keeping a good lookout far ahead, when I saw him again. He did not have long to wait; for I thaw down the lever and put in a new shell. At the next fire he disappeared, but from the cracking of the brush (the fires having burnt through there last summer), I concluded he was badly hurt, so, putting another load in, I walked up to the ridge, and saw him kicking his last about twenty feet from where he stood when I shot him. He was shot through the neck, about two

NOT DANCING. TONOM , SHE Redskins in Indian Territory Not Affected with the Messiah Craze.

KINGFISHER (I. T.,) Feb. 15 .- [Correct spondence.] So many reports have been sent from this Territory concerning the Indians dancing the ghost dance that a correspondent has just made a circuit of all the tribes in the Territory and says that there is not only no ghost dancing going on, but the Indians do not know what such dances are. He talked with the chiefs of several tribes and they all told him they did not know what he meant when he asked about ghost dances or spirit dances. They gnost dances of spirit dances, and that all the Indians had dances, and these were danced every season. They had no especial significance, but were simply religious or social ceremonies. Each tribe had its dances and they were always danced at the same time of the year. The Indians said that white men talked too much about in-dians and caused trouble. Indians do not dance now when they mean mis-chief and never did.

The Indians of the Territory have been peaceful for nearly twenty years; now very few are the least bit inclined to follow after any strange Indians who may come among them with new who may come among them with new theories. They are for the greater part anxious to "follow the white man's road," as they express it, and say that they want to live in houses and be like white men and have their children go to school. The work of irresponsible correspondents has done more to injure the Indians of the Territory than anything else.

DREAMS.

Reasons Why Some are Considered Prophetic.

Dr. Hammond's Investigations in the Shadowy Realm

Created by Half Awakened Brains-Disease Often Foretold.

The Brain, He Thinks, Feels the First Approach of a Malady, and When Untrameled Makes an Exaggeration of It,

Impressions made upon the senses are frequently the starting points of dreams, but though all nations have, to a greater or less extent, in all ages of the world, believed in the prophetic nature of dreams, we now know that the relation, instead of being one of prophecy and fulfillment, is simply that of cause and effect. Very slight impressions made upon the senses during sleep are exaggerated by the partially-awak-

The first evidence of approaching paralysis may be a very minute degree of numbness-so minute that the brain. when awake and engaged with the busy thoughts of active life, fails to apprethoughts of active life, falls to appreciate it. During sleep, however, the brain is quiescent, till some exciting cause sets it in uncontrollable action, and dreaming results. Such a cause may be the incipient numbness of a limb. A dream of its being turned into stone, or cut off, or violently struck, is the consequence. The disease goes on developing, and soon it makes its presence unmistakable.

For several years past I have made inquiries of patients and others relative inquiries of patients and others relative to their dreams, and have thus collected a large amount of material bearing upon the subject. With reference to the point under consideration, the data in my possession are exceedingly impor-tant and interesting. Among the cases which have thus come under my obser-vation of diseases being preceded by morbid dreams are the following:

DREAMED HE WAS CUT IN TWO. A gentleman, two days before an attack of hemiplegia, dreamed that he was cut in two exactly down the mesial line from the chin to the perineum. By some means union of the divided surfaces was obtained, but he could only move to one side. On awakening a little numb-ness existed in the side which he had dreamed was paralyzed. This soon passed off, and ceased to engage his attention. The following night he had a somewhat similar dream, and the next day, toward evening, was seized with the attack which rendered him hemi-

Another dreamed one night that a man dressed in black and wearing a black mask came to him and struck him violently on the leg. He experienced no pain, however, and the man con-tinued to beat him. In the morning he felt nothing, with the exception of a Nothing unusual was slight headache. Nothing unusual was observed about the leg, and all went on well until, on the fifth day, he had an apoplectic attack, accompanied with hemiplegia, including the leg which he had in his dream imagined to have been struck.

A lady aged 40, who had been a great sufferer from rheumatism for twenty years, dreamed one afternoon while sitting in her chair in front of the struck how three a stone at her, the fire that a boy threw a stone at her, which, striking her on the face, in-flicted a very serious injury. The next day violent inflammation of the tissues around the facial nerve as it emerges from the stylo-mastoid foramen set in and paralysis of the nerve followed, due to effusion of the serum, thickening, and consequent pressure.

A young lady dreamed that she was seized by robbers and compelled to swallow melted lead. In the morning she felt as well as usual, but toward the middle of the day was attacked with severe tonsilitis. vere tonsilitis.

PULLED HIS HAIR OUT.

A young man informed me that a day or two before being attacked with acute meningitis he dreamed that he was seized by banditti while traveling in Spain, and that they had taken his hair out by the roots, causing him great

A lady of decided good sense had an epileptic seizure which was preceded by a singular dream. She had gone to bed feeling somewhat fatigued with the labors of the day, which had consisted of attending three or four morning receptions, winding up with a dinner party. She had scarcely fallen asleep when she dreamed that an old man clothed in black approached her, holding an iron crown of great weight in his hands. As he came near she perceived that it was her father, who had been dead several years, but whose features she distinctly recollected. Holding the crown at arm's length he said:

"My daughter, during my lifetime I was forced to wear this crown. Death relieved me of the burden, but it now descends to you." singular dream. She had gone to descends to you."

Saving which he placed the crown on her head and disappeared gradually from her sight. Immediately she felt a great weight and an intense feeling of constriction in her head. To add to her distress the immediately she that the ring of distress she imagined that the rim of the crown was studded on the inside with sharp points, which wounded her forehead so that the blood streamed down her face. She awoke with agita-tion, excited, but felt nothing uncom-fortable. Looking at the clock on the mantelpiece she found that she had been in bed exactly thirty-five minutes. She returned to bed and soon fell asleep, but was again awakened by a similar dream. On this occasion the apparition reproached her for not being willing to wear the crown. She had been in bed this last time over three hours before awaking. Again she fell asleep and again at broad daylight she was awakened by a like draam awakened by a like dream

AN INHERITED DREAM. She now got up, took a bath and proceeded to dress herself with her maid's assistance. Recalling the particulars of her dream she recollected that she had heard her father say one day that in his youth, while being in England, his native country, he had been subject to epileptic convulsions, consequent on a fall from a tree, and that he had been cured by having the operation of tre-phining performed by a distinguished London surgeon.

phining performed by a distinguished London surgeon.

Though by no means superstitious, the dreams made a deep impression upon her, and her sister entering the room at the time she preceeded to detail them to her. While thus engaged she suddenly gave a lond scream, became unconscious and fell upon the floor in a true epileptic convulsion. This paroxysm was not a severe one. It was followed in about a week by another, and, strange to say, this was preceded as the other by a dream of her father placing an iron crown on her head and pain being thereby produced. Since then several months have elapsed and she has had no other attack, owing to the influence of the bromide of potassium which she continues to take.

under my treatment for epilepsy the fits are invariably preceded by dreams of difficulties of the head, such as de-capitation, hanging, perforation with an auger, etc.

A lady, previous to an attack of sciatica, dreamed that she had caught her foot in a spring trap and that before she could be freed it was necessary to amputate the member. The opera-tion was performed, but as she was re-leased a large dog sprang at her and fastened his teeth in her thigh. She screamed aloud and awoke in her terror. Nothing unusual was perceived about the leg, but on getting up in the morning there was slight pain along the course of the sciatic nerve, and this, before evening, was developed into well-marked sciatica.

WHY THEY ARE PROPHETIC. It would be very easy to pursue the subject further, but enough has been said to show that the so-called "prophetic dreams," like all others, have their origin either in impressions made upon some one or more of the special senses or in recollections of previous senses or in recollections of previous impressions. We are therefore obliged to dismiss, as without any foundation in fact, the notion that dreams have anything of the nature of true prophecy about them. As to other alleged extraordinary dreams, such as those indicating the occurrence of events of which the person has no actual knowledge, I can only say that, without denying the possibility of such occurrences, they have not yet been shown to be real. As I have said before in other relations there is nothing impossible outside the domain of mathematics, but there are a great many things apparently possible great many things apparently possible which have not yet been satisfactorily established, and until proven it is well to hold our acceptance of their reality

THE DEADLY UPAS TREE.

Its Poisonous Quality Really Exists—The Similar Effects of Hops. [Medical Bulletin.]

[Medical Bulletin.]

The upas or antiuris toxicaria of Java has been long known as the deadly tree to many of the popular writers, which is, unfortunately, not a grave mistake, as credited by some. The tree, a large one, belonging to the same order as the hop, contains certain elements, consisting of a peculiar principle, having all the activity of a very powerful poison. This principle is antiarin.

This plant, when simply approached, regardless of handling, but aggravated by disturbing the foliage or exposure to night influences, is capable of emitting an acriform matter which very unpleasantly affects many of those who approach it, causing a formidable eruption on the skin and more marked tumefaction of the deeper layers of the sur-faction of the deeper layers of the sur-face, while others seem perfectly free from its influences

Internally used, this plant is poison. In relation, now, with this plant, I here intend to show that the hop has such action in some individuals, will endeavor to demonstrate, Having had the occasion of directing the use of hops in the form of a fomentation, I advised that a large flannel bag be filled and then immersed in boiling water, al-lowing the excess of water to drain off previous to use. In the course of the procedure a lady manipulating the operation was com-pelled to have her face and neck ex-posed to the abundant vapor, which at the time caused no inconvenience. After the lapse of six hours a general burning of the skin ensued, accompa-nied by stiffness of the muscles, ending in a general smarting and tumefaction of the tissue, adding to the features very great disfigurement, and obliterat-ing the eyes.

The young man twirled his hat nervously and cleared his throat.
"If I understand you rightly," he said,

"You are, Mr. DeEanis," answered the young woman.
"If that is your decision," he rejoined, twirling his hat the other way, "I presume there is nothing for me to do but submit. I had hoped for a different result. The reason for the ill success that has attended my effort to place our acquaintance on a more confidential suit. The reason for the ill success that has attended my effort to place our acquaintance on a more confidential basis," he went on, "is, I apprehend, that I have failed in some way to bring myself into full and complete sympathy with the idea and purposes that animate and sustain you. I have not succeeded in becoming en rapport, if I may so express myself, with you as regards the things that go to make up what we call congeniality, affinity, coördination. To change the figure slightly, I have been unable to place myself on the plane where your sympathies, instincts, in short, your inner self, abides, or to establish that fellowship of soul that grows out of harmonious views, preferences and habits of thought. Am I right, Miss Jiboom?"

"Yes," she answered, softly, while tears of pity for the wretched young man stood in her lovely eyes; "you don't seem to have caught on to my style a little bit."

WASTE IN ADVERTISING.

Why "Ads" in First-class Newspapers Are Best, [Philadelphia Times.]

(Philadelphia Times.)
But it is not in the profligate use of immense show bills for dramatic artists that the greatest abuse of sound business methods in advertising is presented. We have just gone through the usual period of the wildest profligacy in advertising by a very large number of our business men in this city, who have our business men in this city, who have sought to attract business by costly circulars and illustrated cards of various kinds. In forty-nine cases out of fifty these circulars and cards are never read at all, and a large majority of them go into the waste-basket of every house without being seen by the persons to whom they are directed. This is the most costly, the most wasteful, and necessarily the most nuwise, of all modern most costly, the most wasteful, and necessarily the most unwise, of all modern advertising methods.

The cost of sending out 5000 circulars printed in the artistic style now required by the competition in business would present the same information to more than a million of people through the columns of the leading journals of this city, and at less than one-half the outlay. No advertisement that is wisely conceived can fail to attract attention in a first-class newspaper. It is read, not only by the heads of the house, but by visitors, children and servants, while out of the 5000 circulars sent out not 500 are ever read, and when read are less likely to attract trade than is the legitimate advertisement. The daily advertisements of our leading merchants in this city are carefully read in every household, as are the marread in every household, as are the mar-kets, fashions or politics of the day; and our shoping, as a rule, is regulated by the daily announcements of our leading business establishments, while the circulars sent from the same houses, even when artistically illustrated, at-tract little or no attention. The daily newspaper now goes into

The daily newspaper now goes into every home, and it is the only legiti-The daily newspaper now goes into every home, and it is the only legitimate channel through which legitimate business can reach the public and command legitimate trade. Newspaper advertising is seldom abused. At times it is unwisely employed by those who are mere imitators of others, and who have not the genius to adapt their advertising to their particular calling; but even that waste is infinitesimal compared with the profligacy that has become common in the use of circulars beautifully printed and mailed practically to the waste-baskets of the people. When it is considered that through any one of several of the leading newspapers of Philadelphia an advertiser can reach each day from $00,000 to 500,000 people, what possible excuse can there he for wasting money in advertising circulars which are seidom read?

Newspaper advertising of today gives

Newspaper advertising of today gives vastly the cheapest publicity that can be given to business, and the man who confines himself strictly to newspaper advertising, whether merchant or dramatic artist, is the man who will reap the richest advantage from his advertising methods. Sensible business men should at once end the now com-mon profligate waste in advertising.

Ogden wants a metropolitan newspaper and wants it bad. The Board of Trade offers $50,000 in real estate (owners' valuation?) with specifications as follows: "To be similar in style and dress to the Denver Sun, with a daily composition of at least 120,000 ems each issue to be published seven days each issue, to be published seven days in the week, with not less than eight pages, to have a stereotyping plant, perfecting press, a large editorial and reportorial force, one traveling corre-spondent and regular correspondents in all the towns and cities directly tribuall the towns and cities directly tribu-tary to Ogden, and a caricaturist, to be a first-class artist on all important oc-casions and topics." We have never seen a newspaper line of particulars as well made up as that, but the chances are that Ogden will wait a long time before she gets a newspaper on that plan. The publisher would run through with his $50,000 of real estate the first year, and still leave an aching void. year, and still leave an aching void.

HAVE YOU THE GRIP?

Many People Have It and Do Not Know It.

How to Recognise the Symptoms and How to Recognise the Symptoms and How to Recognise the Symptoms and How to Treat Them.

Hundreds of people have the grippe who do not know it. Not necessarily the final stages, but the first stages. They feel pains in the head, and a bad taste in the mouth, get tired and despondent, have chilly sensations, limbs and muscles ache. In some cases these things are overlooked. In most cases, perhaps, they are considered simply a slight cold. In nearly every case they indicate the coming of grippe.

There is but one thing to do when these symptoms appear, and that is to take prompt and vigorous measures to fortify nature to repel the enemy. A little well-directed effort at just her right time will accomplish very much more than labored effort afterward. There is but one thing to be done, and that is to use a pure stimulant, something that will promptly arrest, and in no way injure, something indorsed by scientists, recommended by physicians, and popular because so emclent—Duffy's Pure Malt Whisky. Two years ago, and last year when the grippe was raging, this was the standard remedy used, and recommended by the profession. It did more to prevent the grippe than all other known or recommended remedies. It preserved many people in health who would otherwise have been grievonsly sick, perhaps even worse. It is as efficient whisky, and that Datay's Fare Malt.

has an original subscription edition on best paper and in cloth binding (sold at retail at $7.00,) been reduced to 50 cents—probably less than the cost of the binding alone—and presented to the readers of a magazine or paper upon receipt of 50 cents. Such an offer will never be made again. No publisher could afford to make it unless he wished to present a magazine which he felt sure had only to be introduced to retain its permanent place on the family book table—a magazine just as interesting to the young boy of girl as to the oldest grey-head.

THE COSMOPOLITAN gives in a year 1536 pages of reading by the ablest authors in the world, with over 1300 litus-trations by clever artists, a magazine whose field is the world; and as the true test of merit is success, its growth from 15,000 to over 100,000 copies within the past three years, best attests

HE SALE OF LANDS AT EAST WHITTIER! The breeze which they called a gentle zephyr that shook 'em up at Pasadena didn't hurt East Whittier.

Ine cyclone that is whizzing about the Reform School, although it is close by, don't bother East Whittier.

The talk about war with Chile doesn't chill East Whittier as the big guns of the Esmeralda or the Capt. Pratt, when she comes, won't reach East Whittier.

The big rains the prophets say are coming won't hurt East Whittler, as she is above 'em all, snug against the foothills warm and sunny, her young lemon trees in bloom; her 3-year orange trees loaded with golden fruit, and her sales going merrily on to the tune of first come, first served.

Are still offering great inducements to settlers on the Alessandro tract OF 21,000 ACRES! Which lies only eight and one-half miles from Redlands on the east and the same distance from Riverside on the west. Ten thousand acres are already sold; 5000 acres are being improved. Between 300 and 400 families are living there today, with churchs, schools, stores and hotels. The Alessandro Tract of 21,000 acres is equal to 35 square miles, and is 12 miles long by 3 to 4 miles in width. A most magnificent valley. With the finest soil in the world for orange or fruit culture; with the best water right in Southern California. No stone or brush on the land. People wonder at the great success and rapid growth of Alessandro until they are driven over the tract, then they are not surprised, and all exclaim: "The half has not been told."

Nature has truly been lavish with her gifts at Alessandro in regard to climate and location, and we predict a much more rapid growth during the next two years than in the past year and a half of its existence.
